EDITORIAL

In his Annual Speech Night Address at the end of the 1968 school year, Mr. Barnfield, the Headmaster of the St. Marys District School, suggested the eventual construction of a School Hostel in St. Marys. He envisaged this hostel to cater for High School children from areas further afield than those already attending his school.

His suggestion is based on very sound reasoning. It could benefit many. From the Education Department's point of view it would centralise a major school complex that could serve the educational needs of a large section of this coast and the Fingert Valley and at a level, comparable to any in the state!

As Mr. Barnfield pointed out, there is already a high school in St. Marys. In these expanding times of educational facilities it would seem, therefore, more economical to build from this foundation rather than the eventual construction from scratch of more High Schools in the already crowded metropolitan areas. From the children's point of view, it would mean less travelling and less time away from home at a very impressionable age. Theoretically, their approach to their studies should be better adjusted in a similar environment to their own. For the parents, this would mean a greater peace of mind, it also would mean a greater financial saving in travel and board expenses.

St. Marys also would benefit by the added local employment, there would be more teachers and children to cater for and generally because of all this, it would become more stimulated both financially and culturally.

With the emphasis these days placed on the decentralization of industry and the subsequent progress in areas that otherwise would stagnate, why cannot this also be applied in education? Throughout the world University Towns have been accepted for years, why not a High School town?

If this procedure was in due course implemented to this paper's knowledge, it would be the first in Tasmania and possibly in Australia.

For too many years now our rural populations have suffered penalties in too many things whilst urban areas get it better and better. A rural situated education complex would seem one ideal way for our educationalists to be able to say 'An equal chance for all.'

THREE COMMENTS from tourists. A teacher, his wife and two children travelling in a hire car from New Norfolk to Swansea and back. "Tasmania is a beautiful island, we are enjoying our holiday immensely - except perhaps for that Hotel between Sorrell and Swansea where the woman wanted $4.00 for four pies and four cups of tea.

TWO GIRL STUDENTS from Melbourne University. "We've only had three days to get around the island. Next time we'll make it three weeks.

A HONEYMOON COUPLE from S.A. "Well, there's plenty of scenery - can't say the same about lavatories though. Can we presume there are no public toilets between Launceston and Seamander?"

LETTERS.

Sir,
On reading your editions of The Valley Voice, especially the one on 17/1/69 it is quite apparent you have a grudge against Councillors and all forms of Government in general. As this is so it is a wonder you were not too proud to accept the $800 grant recently spent on the road to your property. This was received through the efforts of your local Councillors.
Likewise, until recently you accepted the facilities of a local institution to compile The Valley Voice. To my knowledge permission to use these facilities was not requested.
The Valley Voice has achieved little except degrade the township of St. Marys. The crisis we are in now is an act of God. It is a crisis such as war when we must forget all grudges and combine our efforts for the betterment of the Valley and its people in general. It is regretted your paper does not do this. Life is so short and judging by the large number of unsolds the life of The Valley Voice could be just as short.
As a Councillor, I am loathe to impose restrictions at any time until recently necessary and had it not been for an unfortunate break down the stringent restrictions now imposed may not have been necessary as people of the township of St. Marys were being co-operative, unlikened to the Editor of The Valley Voice who claims he knows of leaks in the system but does not show sufficient intelligence to notify Councillors. I have always made myself available at all times any many co-operative persons have taken advantage of this in their efforts to assist. I have always acted as soon as possible even though it may have meant a personal effort on my part. This is not beyond me or any other Ward Councillor.
The Editor writes of wastage of water when a leaking pipe has to be repaired, how then could this be achieved otherwise? A child of ten years would have sufficient intelligence to know there must be some water lost to reduce pressure in pipes. I also assure the Editor that Council has full knowledge of all stop taps and valves together with a plan of the water scheme.

If water has to be carted for the aged and sick, then I will be one who will volunteer to do this and perhaps the Editor who does little else for the town than criticize may care to volunteer also. It is little wonder no notice was taken of recent suggestions in The Valley Voice as the whole town is becoming sick of the piffle contained therein and written by unqualified writers.
The Editor need not worry about water, leave it to the capable Councillors, and if we continue to receive the excellent co-operation that townspeople are rendering then I see no reason for any real concern. Arrangements however are in hand to meet any situation that may arise. The phrase of closing the barn door and ability to cope could well apply to the Editor and his form in a much greater way than Council and Councillors and apparently much more than rain is necessary. Much has been said in the columns of The Valley Voice re a tennis court and a Progress Associations who then would be a better person to foster these moves than those who write about them. Actions speak louder than words, and all that is necessary is initiative and the support of the public. Why not you the Editor? A final word of advice Mr. Editor, get down off that high pedestal it doesn't suit you up there and as I assume this letter will receive severe censoring from the Editor, as the truth often hurts, then I advise readers if this should happen then a copy will be posted in my business premises. HERITAGE CORNER

From Mr. J. Strochnetter, Ulverstone, and formerly of this district comes this tale of the past. During the early 19th century convict gangs were put to work to build the St. Marys Pass under the supervision of a military guard. There were two gangs, one working from the foot of the Pass up and the other working from the top down. One party was camped at Falmouth and the other at St. Marys. One of the convicts from the party camped at St. Marys set out each day and worked hard with the other members of the gang but the guards noticed that each day after the meal break he separated himself from the party and was absent for longer than he should be. They followed him and found him in the bush chipping away at a large stone. 'What are you doing and who gave you authority to leave the party?' asked the guard. 'I am a stonemason' said the convict, 'and I realise that we are building a very steep Pass here and there will be many tired horses coming up this road. I am building a stone trough to place by this creek to help them on their way.' As the prisoner could not claim any authority to do this work his action was reported to the higher command, and then to the Higher still. The judgement was in his favour and he received his parole. The horse trough remained near the top of the Pass and can be remembered by many of the early residents of the district. Unfortunately it was swept away by the 1929 floods and not even the pieces can be found.

HEALTH NOTES

FIRST AID

PART I

First Aid is based on the principles of practical medicine and surgery. It is limited to the assistance rendered at the time of the emergency with such material as may be available. First Aid does not replace the doctor; it is knowledge of what you should do or NOT DO until the victim is in the hands of a doctor or hospital. There are 5 basic rules governing first aid.

1. DON'T PANIC. You must be in control of yourself if you are to make the right decisions. A confident attitude in the first aider will do much to calm and reassure the victim.
 2. MAKE SURE THE VICTIM IS BREATHING. His life may very well be saved by administering IMMEDIATE mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.
 3. CONTROL ANY SEVERE BLEEDING. Obviously, if the victim is breathing satisfactorily, this becomes step number 2.
 4. TAKE STEPS TO PREVENT OR TREAT SHOCK. Remember shock can be well advanced before it becomes obvious, and it is dangerous.
 5. DO NOT MOVE THE VICTIM ANY MORE THAN NECESSARY. If you can treat him where he is, don't move him. If he must be moved, get help and do it properly.
- SHOCK.
DO NOT be misled if the victim of a serious injury appears alert, even cheerful. Symptoms of shock may not develop for as long as an hour after the injury, particularly in cases of severe bleeding.
- SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS OF SHOCK.

- + The victim may feel faint or giddy, or complain of blurring of his vision; he may collapse.
 - + He is seen to blanch, his colour may fade to a deathly pallor.
 - + He breaks into a sweat.
 - + His skin is clammy and cold, sometimes alarmingly so.
 - + His breathing is shallow and rapid and may later become gasping.
 - + He may have a very anxious expression with dull, vacant eyes.
 - + He has a weak but rapid pulse.
- TO PREVENT AND TREAT SHOCK.
- Have the victim lie down in the basic shock position - on his back with the feet elevated 12 to 18 inches. Do NOT elevate the feet in cases of head injury or chest injury or if the victim complains of pain when feet are elevated. Keep flat in these cases with the head raised on a pillow.
- + Protect victim with a sheet or blanket.
- HE MUST NOT BE OVERHEATED. The object is to keep him as near normal temperature as possible.
- + Do not move him or question him unnecessarily.
 - + Do try to keep him comfortable and encouraged.
 - + Get medical help as quickly as possible.
 - + If there is any delay in getting the victim to hospital or obtaining medical aid, keep half hourly or more frequent records of pulse and respiration rate, and if the victim is conscious, there is no vomiting and no chest or abdominal injury of the penetrating type, give fluids by mouth.

DO NOT GIVE STIMULANTS OR ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES.

Next Edition - Mouth to mouth resuscitation.

IN THE EYE OF THE LAW

Again it has become necessary to bring to the attention of occupants of motor vehicles that are travelling on a public road, that it is an offence to have any part of the persons body protruding from that vehicle. This regulation applies to every person travelling in a vehicle. Police are concerned about the ever increasing number of occasions that this violation of the Traffic Laws is being observed; so much so that it is becoming apparent that stricter action has to be taken, although Police would prefer to see an improvement rather than the necessity arising whereby prosecutions have to take place. Primarily this regulation is to protect the occupants of vehicles from losing or seriously injuring a limb; the main fault being the arm resting on the window ledge and protruding outside and beyond the alignment of the vehicle; but besides this reason it could be misconstrued by the driver of the vehicle travelling behind, as a signal being given. Remember, two arms are better than one.

Sir,

I would like to ask that the new uniform for the St. Marys District School be given a fair trial before judgement as to cost and quality is passed.

I would like to say that the interest NOW being shown on the idea would have been highly valued at the meetings called at the school as to this whole question, and to which all parents were invited to attend. At the last of these meetings, pupils modelled the proposed uniforms and the Headmaster gave a close approximation of costs involved.

It was originally only intended that the High School pupils adopt this 'New Look' in keeping with the fashion change and adult outlook of these pupils. However, when the enthusiastic primary parents approved of the uniform, the whole school was included in the change-over. We have been assured that no one will be pressured into buying this uniform all at once. It would intermingle in the school for some time. Have first year parents realised that the cost of the new uniform will not exceed the savings made by the new hiring scheme for text books this year? The cost of clothes worn for five days a week every week must be more. The old summer uniform was cheap and no one can deny that it looked it.

May I conclude in saying that the pride the pupils feel in their School will be reflected in their pride in wearing its uniform.

(MRS.) K. BUENS,
ST. HELENS.

Sir,

As the water is very short in St. Marys one would think that the townspeople would do something about the fire hazards in the town. The block of ground near the Methodist Church is a disgrace to any town. A fire could sweep through the long grass in no time, and the elderly residents of Groom Street would not have a chance of saving themselves and their treasured belongings. This land could be turned into an attractive park, with no fence. Tourists could eat their lunches, and children play. The lane leading to the 3 elderly residents of Groom Street is also a disgrace. The grass should be cut and kept cut. A few flowering trees could be planted, and it would result in a beautiful lane in Spring. These are not the only two fire hazards in town; but just two I have mentioned.

Sir,

The two raffles conducted by the Seamander Progress Association raised $50.80. The groceries were won by Mrs. K. Jenkins of Seamander and the whisky by Miss Sue Dakin of St. Marys. We thank all those people who gave so generously. The money raised will help to defray the cost of a heavy duty lawn-mower, which will be used on the picnic ground and at Wrinkler's Beach. The toilets we erected at these two popular spots have proved a great boon to visitors. It is sad to relate that some irresponsible people are stealing toilet paper from the Wrinkler toilets. Mr. Ken Jenkins is making a generous gesture by supplying the toilet paper; but as he is not a millionaire, we say to visitors, "Please don't steal the toilet paper."
