FOREST PARKS IN THE FINGAL DISTRICT

by Anton Sather (D.F.)

As I write this, it is one of those perfect summer days - clear, sunny and a slight breeze. I'm sitting at a picnic table looking out over my boys, who are swimming in the creek. Fantail cuckoos are providing a constant background melody, and not far up a gum tree is a kookaburra - did you know their whole body jiggles as they laugh?

There are four other picnic tables in this pleasant white gum - by the - water picnic site, and they are all empty. Being only ten minutes from Fingal, I can only surmise that all you fine people are unaware of this place. Well, it is Miami Park. An old dam has been rebuilt - the original was used for processing gold from the Miami mine. We had to head up earlier to find it, because my eldest son, Ian, gets gold fever, and in his enthusiasm he's not unlike the kookaburra, all jiggling with excitement. It's still there, the original adit, and Ian did find a few specks of gold while fossicking through the rubble heap at its mouth.

Miami is only one of the picnic areas managed for you in the Fingal District by the Forestry Commission. The White Gum Reserve has a recently added picnic area between the road and the creek, which has proved very popular.

A new track into Mathinna Falls has shortened the walking distance, and there are plans to upgrade the picnic facilities at the parking area.

Griffin Park is one of the better known and more popular parks, especially for summer campers. Being grassy flats on the upper South Esk River, it speaks for itself.

The Trout Road Reserve on the upper arm of the Scamander River is accessible by both road and water. Bream can be caught off the river banks, so it gives an opportunity for a picnic plus boating and fishing.

At the moment there aren't printed folders covering these reserves, as we are amalgamating them all into one for the District. However, we'd be happy to guide you from our District Office at Fingal or any of our Range Offices at Mathinna, St. Marys or St. Helens. Now that the fine weather appears to be here, why not go out for a pleasant and relaxing barbecue? Then I may have the pleasure of your company on my next family outing.

DEBT HELP TRAINING COURSE held 5th May, 1984 - an Anglican Family Care Services activity assisted by the Department of Community Welfare, Tasmania.

The days activities were run very ably by Reverend JAW. Price and Anne Matuszek and covered a wide range of subject material with much valuable information included.

To allow co-ordination and participants to keep to a time-table, being only a one day training course, time spent on each subject was limited unfortunately. However a lot of subject material was covered in a matter of hours.

To ensure the information imparted has been retained by participants and they did gain knowledge and knowhow follow-up sessions would be ideal, especially in view of the fact that in the Fingal Valley and surrounding areas few people have taken advantage of debt help counselling. One needs to be constantly engaged in an activity to keep abreast of it.

To have people who may be aware of their own debt problems involved in a similar type course would be an advantage. The information given could be directed more towards the individual, their finances, problems which may arise, how to overcome or avoid these problems and awareness of budgeting.

Other sessions could be set up for the counsellors directed towards helping and guiding others more so than helping themselves.

YOU & THE LAW

THE LAW AND ALCOHOL

The Road Safety (Alcohol and Drugs) Act 1970 which deals with drinking and driving says in part:

(a) a person who has not held a driver's licence for a total period of 12 months is not permitted to drive after drinking alcohol.

FOR FIRST YEAR DRIVERS THIS PLACES A TOTAL BAN ON DRIVING AFTER DRINKING.

(b) drivers are guilty of an offence if they drive a motor vehicle when their blood alcohol is more than .05 per cent.

(c) a person who drives a vehicle whilst under the influence of alcohol or a drug to such an extent as to be incapable of having proper control of a vehicle is guilty of an offence.

(d) first year drivers convicted of drink-driving offences will be required to attend a short education course on the dangers of driving after drinking alcohol. Licences will not be restored until the course has been completed.

(e) a person who refuses to submit to a Breathalyser test or an alcohol test (road-side screening device) or a blood test may be guilty of an offence.

(f) the drinking of intoxicating liquor by a person in a motor vehicle in motion is prohibited.

A driver, for the purposes of the Act, includes a person intending or attempting to drive.

If a policeman has reasonable grounds to believe that you as a driver is impaired, or you were the driver of a motor car involved in an accident, he may require you to undergo a preliminary breath test. He may also require you to be tested on a Breathalyser.

RANDOM BREATH TESTING

A police officer can require any person who is driving a motor vehicle on a public street to undergo a breath test. Such a requirement may be regardless of whether the police officer has reason to suspect that the person has consumed intoxicating liquor.

Drink/driving offences are serious and upon conviction involve a heavy fine, the loss of driver's licence and, in some cases, imprisonment.

Drinking and driving do not mix. You must consider your life and the lives of others.

COLONEL WILLIAM VINCENT LEGGE

"A MAN OF DISTINCTION"

by Gordon Salter

I was rather surprised to hear the late Colonel Legge was born at Cullenswood. I saw quite a lot of him later as a small boy, because he and Mrs. Legge were friends of my parents and I recall being rather overawed by him, his stately and gentlemanly appearance, very stern and rather daunting to a small boy.

He certainly had a distinguished career. He was taken to England and as a boy educated at Bath and later in France and Germany. He passed into the Royal Academy in 1860 and obtained his commission in the Royal Artillery in 1862.

He served with great distinction in England, later served in Melbourne with the Imperial Troops and from 1868 to 1877 served in Ceylon now Sri Lanka.

Returning to England he engaged in the work of arming new ports at Portsmouth and Spitshead. He was offered and accepted the position to command the Forces in Tasmania and he was recognised in such matters so highly, he became Commandant - a position he held until 1892.

One of his sons, Mr. Robert Legge, managed Cullenswood Estate following his fathers death, later it passed into the hands of his son Mr. Arthur Legge and now his son Mr. Robert Legge manages this fine property.

Colonel Legge left behind him a fine legacy of which little is known, and that applied to his lifelong interest in fauna and flora. He wrote a standard works on "Birds of

JUMP STARTING A VEHICLE THE RIGHT WAY

When a vehicle has a flat battery, jump starting is a very useful technique - but there is a right way to do it. Every year people are injured and even blinded by exploding batteries.

Recently, a motorist couldn't start a Toyota Landcruiser because the battery was flat. He decided that the best way to get it going was to use jump leads from another vehicle; a Landrover. The leads were first connected to both terminals of the Landrover battery, then the positive terminal of the Toyota's battery. As the negative lead was connected to the negative terminal of the flat battery a spark arced between the clamp and the terminal, and the battery exploded.

The motorists' fault was in attaching the jump lead to the negative terminal of the dead battery. He should have attached to an earthing point on the chassis or engine. This would have kept any sparks well clear of the battery.

Why should a battery explode? Simply, when charged the sulphuric acid in a battery generates hydrogen and oxygen. These gases explode when ignited. The vents on the battery vent gases away and any arcing at the terminals is sufficient to cause ignition.

The following precautions must be followed when using jump leads on cars:

- (a) Before attaching the leads put out all cigarettes.
- (b) Check the battery fluid level.
- (c) Ensure that both batteries are of the same voltage, and have the same polarity earthed.
- (d) Ensure brakes are on and gears are in 'neutral' or 'park'.
- (e) Ensure the cars are not touching each other.
- (f) Ensure that both ignitions are off, and all accessories are off. This includes closing car doors to switch the passenger courtesy light off.
- (g) Connect the leads up in the following order:
  1. Positive terminal - dead battery.
  2. Positive terminal - good battery.
  3. Negative terminal - good battery.
  4. Engine block - away from battery.
- (h) After the car has been started remove the leads in the exact reverse.

In a situation where both vehicles have a positive earth the procedure starts at clamping the jump lead onto the negative terminal of the dead battery. In the previous instructions you swap the positive and negative terminals and follow the same order.

Where one vehicle has a positive earth, and one has a negative earth the following procedure must be used:

- (a) Connect one clamp to the positive terminal of the positive earthed vehicle.
- (b) Connect the other end of the same cable to the positive terminal of the positively earthed vehicle.
- (c) Connect one end of the second cable to the negative terminal of the positively earthed vehicle.
- (d) Connect the other end of the second cable to the engine block of the vehicle.

The use of these simple procedures will ensure that you will not be injured or perhaps blinded in an easily prevented accident.

Ceylon".

Whilst in Ceylon he gave his attention to natural history and formed an immense collection of native birds which he gave to the local museum.

He was also the means of establishing the fact that one part of Ben Lomond is the highest peak in Tasmania - in consequence this peak has been named Legge's TOR.

A truly brilliant man.

He died at the age of 78 and is buried in the family vault at Cullenswood, St. Marys.
