AUSTRALIA'S BICENTENARY 1988

Australia's Bicentenary provides a rare opportunity for all Australians to join in the activities of 1988 and to celebrate what it means to be Australian.

Every Australian will be touched by the Bicentenary. Major projects and events have been specially organised to encourage all members of the community to join in the celebrations in ways which complement their philosophy and interests.

Australians will be really 'Living Together' in 1988.

The philosophy for 1988 is expressed in the Bicentennial theme 'Living Together'. It reminds us that Australia is a unique blend of relationships between old and new Australians; city and country; people and the environment; Australia and the world; different cultures and past, present and future.

The organisers of the Bicentenary have, therefore, developed a set of planning objectives which reflect these contrasts.

- * To celebrate the richness of diversity of Australians, their traditions and freedoms which they enjoy.

- * To encourage all Australians to understand and preserve their heritage, recognise the multicultural nature of modern Australia, and look to the future with confidence.

- * To ensure that all Australians participate in, or have access to, the activities of 1988, so that the Bicentennial program will be a truly national program in both character and geographic spread.

- * To develop projects and programs which will provide significant and enduring legacies to present-day Australians and future generations.

- * To project Australia to the world and invite international participation with the aim of strengthening relationships with other nations.

The co-ordination of a national celebration is a complex task, but Bicentennial Community Committees are being established in all 839 local government areas around Australia. That means there is one in your neighbourhood.

There are even Bicentennial committees on an international scale with groups active in the U.S.A., U.K., JAPAN, NETHERLANDS, FEDERAL REPUBLIC of GERMANY and FRANCE.

And if you dislike being organised by others, why not devise your own Bicentennial program and get your friends, family or neighbours to join in.

Bicentennial Resource Kits will contain curriculum materials and provide information and guidance on how to create and organise activities related to significant themes events or periods in Australia's history and development. The kits will be distributed to schools during 1987.

It is intended to encourage older people to participate in all the Bicentennial program areas, as well as developing activities which highlight the wisdom, knowledge and accomplishments of older Australians.

The program seeks to ensure that the needs of people with disabilities are taken into account in the planning and implementation of all Bicentennial activities and that the celebrations and events are accessible to people with disabilities. Two main priorities have been chosen for the program. Firstly, on the mainstream principle, is access for people with disabilities to all areas of the Bicentennial Program. The second priority is for a Videotex database which could be accessed by people with disabilities throughout Australia and by professionals within the disability field.

For further information, advice and assistance, State Executive Directors of the Authority may be contacted at GPO Box AUS 1988 in your capital city.

ST. MARYS DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL

SCHOOL GYMNASIUM:

The date that the gymnasium will be available for use is not certain.

Although the Department of Construction has taken over the building from the principal contractor, the gymnasium will not be available for use until after the Education Department accepts it from the Department of Construction. This will probably happen at about the end of March.

In the meantime, matters such as the employment of a cleaner have to be resolved.

Responsibility for administering the gym rests with the Principal of the school under Education Department Regulation 167. To assist in the administration, a committee consisting of the following has been formed:

Graeme Beswick - Principal
Gerald Aulich - Parents & Friends
Ian Bradbury - Club Users' Rep.
Peter Moore - P.E. Teacher
Stephen Salter - Community & Fingal Council
Philip Moore - Vice Principal

Under the regulations, public use of the gymnasium must be on a user-pays basis. Hiring fees must cover the cost of electric power, materials and equipment and cleaning.

While the specific hourly hiring rate is yet to be finalised the rate will be not less than $7 per hour and could be significantly more.

Clubs will be required to lodge a deposit of no less than $50 at the start of each session to cover possible damage to the building and/or equipment.

The flooring is quite expensive ($30,000) and requires very special care. It will be necessary for users to strictly adhere to rules regarding footwear and the type of activities involved. These rules are being prepared and will be distributed and displayed in the gymnasium.

Each club will be required to nominate a representative who will accept responsibility for its use of the gymnasium.

Clubs who are interested in using the gym on a regular basis are asked to forward their requests to the Principal as soon as possible so that the committee can consider them at the next meeting on Monday, 17th March.

GRADE 7 MATHS WORKSHOP:

A parent workshop on the Grade 7 and 8 Mathematics programme was held this Monday.

While only four parents availed themselves of the opportunity to participate, the workshop was a worthwhile exercise.

This year we are again running an individualised Mathematics programme for Grade 7 which was trialled very successfully in 1984. Later this term, the programme will be extended to Grade 8.

The main objectives are to allow students to work ahead as fast and as far as their abilities allow and to avoid the re-teaching of work already known.

As a by-product of this we are able to keep a much more detailed record of the precise skills that have been mastered or that are causing difficulties.

The workshop set out to explain the programme, its aims, its advantages and its origins and to let parents take part in a normal Grade 7 Maths class using the programme.

The general development of mathematical skills as the student progresses from Grade 7 through to Grade 10 were also discussed.

ROAD SAFETY:

There is concern that some children who ride bikes in the town are not observing the rules of the road. All students have been reminded that practices such as riding on footpaths, riding on the wrong side of the road and double-dinking are illegal and warned of the possible consequences if they continue to break the law.

AUSTRALIA

CARD

YOUR PRIVACY

In introducing the Australia Card, protection of individual privacy will be paramount.

As we have said, the Australia Card register will contain only the most basic information - name, address etc. Authorities which rightly hold sensitive personal data, such as the Tax Office, Social Security and Medicare, will continue to maintain secure and separate records.

Only specific federal authorities will be able to access the register to either verify the identity of people they are dealing with or, in the case of the Tax Office, to be sure all Australians are meeting their responsibilities.

There will be no requirements to routinely carry the card and its use will be restricted by legislation to a limited number of situations. It will be an offence for anyone to demand your card in other circumstances but if you wish to use it to prove your identity for any other purpose, that's up to you.

On-line terminals in Medicare offices will also allow you to check all personal data held on the register at anytime

HOW WILL IT OPERATE

Subject to legislation being passed by the Parliament, your Australia Card will be needed in only three situations- employment, financial dealings and the claiming of Commonwealth benefits.

Employers will be required to sight and record the number of each employee's Australia Card. This is necessary to ensure accurate tax records.

The card will again be needed for financial transactions such as opening accounts with banks, building societies and credit unions. It will also be used for other dealings like share purchases and investments.

Finally, Australia Card will assist in confirming your eligibility for Commonwealth benefits such as Medicare and social welfare payments.

For the majority of people, use of the card for these limited purposes will involve little inconvenience, but great benefits will accrue in administering a fairer and more efficient Australia.

WHEN AND WHERE

For Australia Card to realise its full benefits for our community, enrolment must be accurate and the card itself must have inbuilt high security.

Very careful planning will thus precede its introduction and cards will not be issued until the first half of 1987, with the program fully operational in mid 1989.

The program will be administered by the Health Insurance Commission, which has developed a reputation for fast, efficient and friendly service with Medicare. Right now you don't need to do anything. When the time is right, the Commission will contact you personally to arrange the most convenient way for you to enrol and collect your Australia Card.

For most people this will probably involve a visit to their handiest Medicare Office, but special arrangements will be made where this is not possible (e.g. people in remote areas).

PRESS RELEASE 13.3.86

MAX BURR MEMBER FOR LYONS

Collectors of Australian coins will find 1986 a special year, according to Mr Max Burr, MHR for Lyons.

"This year has been designated as the International Year of Peace," Mr Burr said.

"To commemorate the event the Federal Government has decided to strike a special dollar coin.

"The 1986 dollar coin will have a special design on the obverse side.

"The kangaroos give way to the dove of peace.

"The design will feature the International Year of Peace symbol, which is a dove being released from a pair of hands surrounded by a laurel wreath."

Mr Burr said the inscriptions on the special dollar will read 'International Year of Peace' and 'One dollar'.

"Although being produced as general currency the special edition of the dollar coin could become a collector's piece," he said

End.

BODY: describes the wateriness of a wine. A wine that is light in body tastes somewhat watery, but not so much so that the taste is unsatisfactory. Some wines, light Moselles, for instance, have been described as glorious water. A full-bodied wine like Rhone may have so much substance that one can almost chew it, a quality the French call mache. The quality of this fulness can be velvety or silky, giving a sense of texture in the mouth.

BOUQUET: is the collection of smells (flowery alcohols and fruity acids) that form a unity when the wine is good.

PERFUME: refers to the fragrances and aromas, usually light and of the grape, found in a young wine right after fermentation. These develop into the bouquet.

CORKY describes a wine that smells and tastes of the cork. The odour is a sign that the cork has rotted and the wine has been spoiled. A good wine steward will sniff the cork after to verify that the wine is sound and smells of the wine, or he will present the cork to the host for verification.
