Householders who spend more than $10.000 on home renovations or extensions must advise the Australian Taxation Office, according to the Tax Commissioner, Mr Trevor Boucher.

Building representatives have estimated that more than 100,000 Australians start some form of domestic building every year.

Mr Boucher said that about 75,000 of these household improvements could be reasonably valued at more than $10,000 and therefore come under the Prescribed Payments System (PPS).

Householders in these circumstances would then have obligations to the Tax Office, he said.

The Prescribed Payment System is used to collect income tax for work, other than that covered by pay-asyou-earn tax.

According to income tax law, a householder is a person who contracts with another person -usually a builder- to do building work.

PPS also applies to householders, who as owner-builders, undertake similar domestic projects by assuming the role of the builder for the project. They are, therefore responsible for deducting tax from payments made to the subcontractor.

Mr Boucher said that, the diff-erence is that owner-builders are required to deduct tax from payments of work, but householders are required only to report payments.

"As soon as the householder or owner-builder realises that the cost of the project will be more than $10,000, they must register with the Tax Office", he said.

"Each month during the project, the householder must send details of all payments made for the building work to the Tax Office. However, an owner-builder must forward details of the amount of payment made and the amount of tax deducted to the Tax Office".

Householders usually will make one payment or monthly payments to their builder and it is these payments which must be reported.

In estimating the total cost of a project, the householder must include the cost of goods and materials, as well as the cost of The cost of surveying, work done. design, and other activities completed before the project started must also be included.

PPS covers payments for work under a contract for:

- * Painting, decorating, or treating internal or external surfaces.
- * Installing, fitting or fixing any heating, cooking, refrigeration, insulation, lighting, power or water supply, irrigation, sanitation, drainage, fire or security protection, sound communication or airconditioning, walls, ceilings, linings or floors, tiles or other claddings or built-in furniture.
- * Internal or external cleaning.
- * Any other activity on land or a structure, including preparation for, or finishing of, any of the above activities. This includes earth moving, foundations, scaff-olding and landscaping.

Payment reporting is not required however, for some services which are included in the total cost of the project. These include such professional building services as architecture, design, engineering and surveying, and delivery or removal of goods and materials.

ST. MARYS GOLF NOTES by Tee Up

St. Marys had a very successful Legacy Day with 77 players from Mowbray - Riverside - L'ton - Swansea - Bicheno - Malahide and St. Malang St. Helens. Congratulations to Geoff Hughes for winning the A.I.F. Cup in which he has competed since its inception 30 years ago at the St. Marys Club. Mowbray really had a day of it by winning 10 of the 17 trophies. I believe many visitors praised the condition of the course and this must be pleasing to the home Club for a wonderful effort.

On Sunday April 24 the Football Social Day Mens Canadian Foursome - 10.30 start is on the agenda. The aim is to have one footballer and one golfer in combination. Barbecue will be available. *looks like an interesting day. WARBURTON

by Aaron Furlow, Grade 10

Warby, as it is commonly known by the townsfolk, was a fast growing area with workmen kept constantly busy developing and constructing new houses, buildings and shops around the area to extend the area to East Warburton with central Warby as well.

Every school day, morning and afternoon, the school buses could be heard travelling to and from school in their cwn rattling fashion. We would be awoken every morning by the squeak of the paper boy's bicycle. During most afternoons and nights one could hear the rattle and banging of people pushing buttons at one of several pinball parlours and amusement arcades (which are usually overcrowded by teenagers and young adults).

During a mid-afternion Saturday in Winter you could see the recreation ground packed with cars, together with their shouts, cheers as well as beeps of homes, participating in the series of events at the local football matches, which is a loved sport by the majority of the four thousand plus spectators.

Then there is the smell of the trees and flowers in blossom with their fragrance illowing during the period of spring while the boys and girls feast on the ripe plums and apples in the orchard up Hillditch Avenue.

WEST LAUNCESTON

by Kelly Frank, Grade 10

when summer comes, so does the rest of Launceston - to the Basin!

The tidy schedule of West Launcestonians is upset, as the place comes alive in the sticky heat, cars line both sides of the road in an effort to gain a little square of ground near the pool. It's even more crowded when the rock concert begins though; the older people - the only ones left in their houses cringe when the thressent drum beat begins. But it's soon ever in a matter of days, and West Launceston is left to itself for another year.

YOU'RE ON YOUR OWN IN A WORLD OF RACISM

by Alison Lyne, Grade 10

It is a desolate land I live in, a land that sustains the flow of the River Murray in Australia's parched riverland area. I see the water at a steady on-going pace in the winter and virtually cease to flow in the warrier months, leaving our trees without a base to expand and mature as the banks are corroded away - a harsh country.

This is the land I call my home, the clear sky my roof and ochre soil a place for resting.

I knew very little about the land ; beyond the horizon fostering the greater amount of the population, but dreamed often about the tales I had a been told by my elders. I imagined wearing footwear and not walking upor my bare heel, the rich chocolate colour drained from my souls as if a lemon squeezed of its juice.

I was not to know that one day my dreams could tecome a reality

The opportunity came by means of a visiting white man who was unknown to me. He came promising hope and good fortune to any who ventured into what he referred to as "the only place to be", ... a city full of people oconomic earnings.

My dreams over-ruled any particular doubt I may have had, I was lured into bus not. Doubts came later as if they had once been twisted like the braids in my hair then combed out and straightened to flow freely.

The city lights glistened, remind-ing me of the moon and the stars and the way they reflected upon the West Launceston is your average Murray. Buildings extended high into middle-class suburb. But, of course, the distant hand of the gods, like when summer comes, so does the root. nothing I could renember withessing previously.

> I had footwear, I felt proud but uncomfortable ... I did not belong, people stared, as if it was a crime to have blemished skin the colour of the earth, and commented amongst themselves regarding other characteristics that they could not accept - I AM an aborigino, a true Australian, but all I face is discrimination, a now word to me!

PARENTS & FRIENDS MEETING 7.30 p.m. Ruesday, 19th April M. Forsyth will discuss H. Ec. scopes and costing with parents.

(Excerpts from the Weekly Courier, Wednesday April 10th, 1929)

Adverse weather conditions were responsible for the unsuccessful show held at St. Marys last Wednesday. It was distinctly unfortunate for the Society and the district that one of the worst rain storms of recent years should have come along on the day set down for the show. The executives had arrangements well in ham. And the Secretary, Mr W.N. Wright had worked unceasingly in an endeavour to bring about a record fixture. A number of visitors from a distance put in an appearance on the day prior to the Show, and had the weather remained fine many more would have come along. As it was only the very hardiest spilits ventured out. Despite the fact that it was 'teeming cats and dogs', the entire ring programme was persisted with. Those who had the courage to visit the ground were treated with the spectacle of equestrians of both sexes splashing through deep pools and negotiating fences from take offs fetlock deep in mud. As in these cases horses jumped carefully and safely and no accident occurred. The riders however could not have had one stitch of dry clothing on them. Hack races and trots were also run.

The Governor, Sir James O'Grady was present and performed the opening ceremony. There is no doubt that in the person of Gir James, the primary producers have a real champion. His investigations of their position, is no superficial one for he probes their problems with a thoroughness that has won the admiration of the farming and pastoral community..... A considerable financial loss is likely to result due to the wet day but with the determination to succeed which was expressed by the President of the Association, Mr Eugene Ransom, there is little doubt that in a few years the deficit will be completely wiped out.
