WINTER MOTORING

The basic keys to safe wet weather motoring are - slow down, be alert, and maintain a safe margin to the car in front.

DRIVING IN FOG.

Driving in fog can be one of the most frustrating and dangerous conditions facing motorists. Fog can play tricks on the eyes and make objects appear smaller or twice as far away as they actually are, whether it is patchy or heavy fog.

Motorists often tend to drive too fast in fog as sensations of distance and speed are readily lost due to obscured landmarks. The heavy atmosphere can also mean that the car's engine performs well, therefore the driver can subconsciously be driving at a speed unsuitable to the conditions. If you encounter fog you should drive within the limit of visibility, at a pace at which you can stop within the field of vision, should a hazard occur.

In dense fog, it is easy to become confused. It is wise to travel slowly and to use the road edge markings for guidance. The desire to stay close to the centre lines on single lane highways should be avoided as this could lead to a head-on collision with another vehicle.

Headlights, or low mounted fog-lights, should be used. Use of high beam, particularly during the day, can cause reflections back to the driver because of water particles in the air. So lights should be dipped.

A common practice of drivers under foggy conditions is to closely follow the tail lights of the vehicle ahead. This is extremely dangerous and can lead to multi-vehicle collisions such as those happening on major motorways in Europe. It is advisable to leave a window slightly open to aid ventilation and to provide clues to the driver from sounds that would not otherwise be heard.

WET WEATHER DRIVING.

Simply put, when driving on wet roads - slow down. Extra care should be taken.

The distance from the car in front should be doubled and all manoeuvres should be indicated early and clearly especially in poor visibility.

Forward vision is usually impaired in inclement weather, so maintenance is essential. Deteriorated wiper rubbers and a fogged, smeared interior windscreen are not conducive to clear vision.

Be very careful on wet roads after a dry spell. The build up of oil, grease, rubber and dust usually results in slippery surfaces.

During heavy rain, flooding can often occur from overflowed gutters and rivulets. That's when aquaplaning can occur. A car aquaplanes when it builds up a cushion of water ahead of the rolling tyre. If the tread grooves cannot allow sufficient water to pass through, the tyre loses road contact and actually floats on a wedge of water.

When this happens, brakes and steering are virtually ineffective. The remedy? Slow down until speed drops sufficiently for the tyre to make contact again.

Generally, the deeper the tyre's tread depth, a faster speed is allowed before road contact is lost.

Modern high performance radial tyres with special drainage channels can be driven at quite high speeds without loss of contact.

FRONT WHEEL DRIVE

A front drive car will often react very differently to steering, throttle and brake application in wet conditions.

We advise, drive slowly, make slow precise movements of controls, particularly when cornering.

If you need to brake suddenly, apply the brakes progressively, to avoid wheel lock-up. Suddenly slamming on the brakes-especially in the wet - will usually result in locked wheels, followed by a sickening slide into the rear of the car in front.

SECONDARY EDUCATION - THE FUTURE:

The document, Secondary Education - The Future, is a statement of principles on the future direction of secondary education in Tasmania. It is the result of an extensive process of discussion and consultation and provides the basis for planning and action.

"Educating our young people and equipping them for their adult lives is one of our community's most important responsibilities. It also presents a tremendous challenge - to teachers, to parents and to government.

The principles set out in this booklet are designed to meet that challenge. They recognise that our society is changing at an accelerating rate, and that when our children leave school they will enter a highly competitive world. Accordingly, our education system must:

- develop in students the basic competencies associated with reading, writing and calculating;
- equip them to handle the realities of the world beyond the classroom; and
- be sufficiently flexible to respond promptly to the changes that take place in our community.

At the same time, the principles recognise that Tasmanians expect their education system to help our young people develop their talents to the full, achieve a sense of self-worth, demonstrate care for others, and have pride in and contribute to their community and their country. Tasmanians also expect the education system to ensure that our young people have a real appreciation of those community standards and values which, in time, they will hold in trust for their own children."

Peter Rac,
Minister for Education.

Any interested member of the community who would like a copy of the booklet can obtain one from the school.

UNDESIRABLE TRENDS:

There is concern that a number of children, particularly young children, appear to have the opportunity to view video-films which are quite inappropriate for them.

This conclusion has been reached from an examination of the students' writing and other creative work.

Parents are requested to carefully supervise the video material that their children watch.

RESEARCH ABOUT LEARNING & TEACHING:

1. CURRICULUM OF THE HOME. Parents are their children's first and most influential teachers. What parents do to help their children learn is more important to academic success than how well-off the family is.
2. READING TO CHILDREN. The best way for parents to help their children to become better readers is to read to them - even when they are very young. Children benefit most from reading aloud when they discuss stories, learn to identify letters and words, and talk about the meaning of words.
3. INDEPENDENT READING. Children improve their reading ability by reading a lot. Reading achievement is directly related to the amount of reading children do in school and home.

PRESS RELEASETHE SCOUT ASSOCIATION OF AUSTRALIA
- TASMANIAN BRANCHVENTURERS COMPETE FOR NEW TROPHY

On Friday 26 June, 15 parties of Venturer Scouts from around the state will assemble at the St. Marys recreation ground. Over the next two days they will take part in the first competition for the new TENISWOOD TROPHY.

When a separate section for members aged 14-18 years (then called Senior Scouts), was created by the Association in 1946, a trophy for biannual competition to find the best group in the state in a wide range of outdoor activities was created.

In 1972 Venturers replaced Senior Scouts, with a whole new award scheme, and the old Meredith Trophy was "retired" to a place of honour. Now, after some 15 years without an outdoor Scoutcraft competition, the youth members and leaders in Venturing have agreed to re-introduce such a competition. The new trophy has been named in honour of Mr. John Teniswood of Kingston, who served 13 years as the Association's Commissioner for Venturers and is now District Commissioner for Kingborough.

On Saturday morning the parties of Venturers will be dropped off at different points in the Scamander State Forest, where each party will follow its own instructions on a 5 hour hike through a wide variety of challenging country. Arriving at the right place at the right time will be critical to success in this section.

Upon their return to St. Marys on Saturday afternoon, each party of Venturers will set up an overnight camp. The cooking and camping standards of each party will be carefully assessed over the following 20 hours.

While camped at St. Marys each party will also have to complete a series of "tasks & challenges", which involve activities such as first aid, pioneering, estimation, fire lighting and campcraft initiative. When the final scores are tallied at noon on Sunday 28th there should be no doubt as to which Venturer Unit in the State is number one in outdoor skills.

As there has been no such competition for 15 years, there is no "favourite" and Venturer

Commissioner Brian Williams, together with competition organizer Douglas Ewington, believe that whether the final winner comes from Burnie, Bicheno, Exeter, Geeveston or the Hobart or Launceston city areas, the result will be a surprise to all concerned, including the winners.

HOLLYBANK FOREST RESERVE

Although Hollybank is well and truly worth a visit all the year round, it is particularly scenic in the autumn.

The reserve, situated at Underwood, a few kilometres off the Lilydale Road just 20 minutes from Launceston, is famed for its plantations of English ash and radiata pines.

Many trees are deciduous and are shedding their leaves, covering the forest floor with the autumn colours of yellow, orange and brown.

The park also has several kinds of native forests, with wet and dry eucalypts and rainforest species. As well, there are many exotic deciduous trees and conifers from northern Europe and North America.

The reserve is one of the North's most popular picnic spots and is the ideal place for a family outing or barbeque.

Facilities include barbeques, picnic tables, a shelter, toilets, car parks and walking tracks.

An added bonus of the reserve is the recently opened adjacent Hollybank Forest Centre. The centre has been developed by the Forestry Commission with the help of the Education Dept. and houses information and displays on forestry, ecology, management and local history.

A central information tower offers scenic views of the trees in all directions below. A trail leads from the centre with signs outlining features of the nearby native forests.

A SHORT HISTORY OF "BONA VISTA" AVOCA

"Bona Vista" was granted to Simeon Lord of Sydney around 1820. He later transferred the title to his eldest son Simeon. For seven years the property was managed "on the thirds" by John Smith known as "The Dealer". "On the thirds" was a common land agreement of the time, where the "keeper" took a third of the natural increase.

The first dwelling on the property was a hut, built with mud walls, and high foundations, not far from the present homestead. In the early 1830's a house was built, described as a "modest dwelling", in which Simeon Jnr. and Sarah Lord lived after their marriage in 1831. The present homestead was built in stages, from stone quarried on the estate. Census statistics show that it was only partly completed in 1842 finished by 1848. It seems that the east wing was built first with cellars underneath, followed by the south wing which extended across in front of the original two roomed house. Both of these wings are finished with beautiful stone work, still in excellent condition today. By contrast the other two wings of the house, the outbuildings and the walls around the property are built of inferior stone. Mr F Burns of Launceston has suggested that at the time of their construction less skilled or even unskilled labour was used.

The homestead seems to have been designed with great emphasis on security. Early settlers in this region were greatly troubled by the threat of attack by natives and bushrangers, and all effort was made to protect properties from their plundering. At Bona Vista the elaborate system of walled yards near the house offered some safety to valuable stock which could be herded there when an attack was feared. Some of the walls are 9 feet high and 2 feet thick. The house itself was built like a fortress, around its own enclosed courtyard. Some of the main windows are equipped with shutters and bars, which can still be seen. During the daytime they could be concealed by holding back inside the windows to form part of the decorative architrave panelling. The dungeons under the east wing were used to house convicts, and ticket of leave men who worked on the estate. It is legend that unruly convicts were chained to the ring in the courtyard to be flogged. However it is also possible that the ring was used in hauling goods by rope to the loft above.

These rooms in the house are thought to have provided sleeping quarters for the servants. Access to those above the kitchens in the north wing was by ladders, which could be withdrawn at night. The large manholes can be seen in the small room beside the kitchen, and by the back entrance near the cool room.

The main entrance to the house is near the ballroom and drawing room, thus guests could be driven round a circle up to the main steps in their carriages, which were then taken away through the archway to the carriage house. Guests were entertained in the ballroom or drawing room, quite separate from the rest of the house. These two rooms, along with the other principal rooms were serviced with bells which rang out in the courtyard and near the cool room.

The coolroom is noticeably cooler than the rest of the house, because of its special construction. Stone benches were built along the walls to store dairy produce. At some later time, a large walk-in meat safe has been built nearby.

Bona Vista is noted for its solidly constructed outbuildings, some of these have now gone - eleven were demolished in recent times. However the fine barn still dominated the yard with its attached stables and dairy. Worthy of note in the stables are the huge blackwood beams and panelling.

The fowl yard is very substantial, with twenty five nesting boxes, painstakingly formed in the bricked-wall.

The census statistics of the 1840's give an indication of the number of people living at Bona Vista. In 1842 when the house was only partly built there were 46 residents, 27 of whom were free, in addition there were 9 free people living in an unfinished wooden cottage on the estate under the charge of Thomas Sharkey. The manager at this time was D.R. Falkiner. In 1843 only 19 residents were recorded, 12 of whom were free.

By 1848 the house was completed and housed 43 residents, 25 of whom were free. Thomas Sharkey's cottage built of stone and wood was also completed, and had 11 free residents and 3 under bond. Another stone cottage is also listed, occupied by James Bonser and 3 others.

In 1862 the property was advertised for public auction. The "Mercury" newspaper gave details of the estate as being 9767 acres in one block, with a frontage of upwards of 6 miles on the South Esk and a similar frontage on Buffalo Brook. There were 700 acres under cultivation - mainly English clover, and with a sheep run that cannot be surpassed

On behalf of the Salvation Army Cornwall we would like to thank all who have donated money, blankets, linen, and clothing to help us with our work to help those in need, particularly during this winter.

Also to the many people who have given donations at Football and Hotels.

Your generosity is appreciated and it has helped us with our work in the Fingal Valley.

Sunday July 5th is our Salvation Army Doorknock Appeal.

Because of the large area we have to cover some areas will be collected from Friday 26th June.

We would appreciate more collectors for the Sunday. Areas needed are FINGAL - ST MARYS - SCAMANDER

If anyone can help even for a few hours ring Envoy Betts 722352.

This year the target for the Fingal Valley is $2000.00. So with your support and generosity we will achieve this and help us in our work in Tasmania. (All money raised remains in the State).

Once again many thanks for all support that has been given and for all that will be given.
