ANZAC DAY, 2011 in ST MARYS

On a perfect autumn morning, 36 members of the public of St Marys and surrounding districts came together for the Dawn Service, to pay tribute to those who fought for their country in all the conflicts of which Australia was involved. After the service many took advantage of the Gunfire breakfast.

As the day progressively warmed up, another 150 plus people arrived to participate in the 11am Memorial Service. Wreaths were laid by many members of the public, also service clubs and other organisations.

Addresses were given by school students from St Marys District High School, Shantelle Arratta, Joshua McDiarmid and Corey Thow, and music was supplied by Rita and Ian Summers, Don Ives and Ted Koops. The beautiful bugle strains of the Last Post, recorded on tape many years ago and played by the late Selby Targett could be heard all over St Marys.

Congratulations to the organisers for another successful memorial service.

The organisers would like to offer their thanks and appreciation to the following members of the public, with apologies if they have inadvertently left someone out.

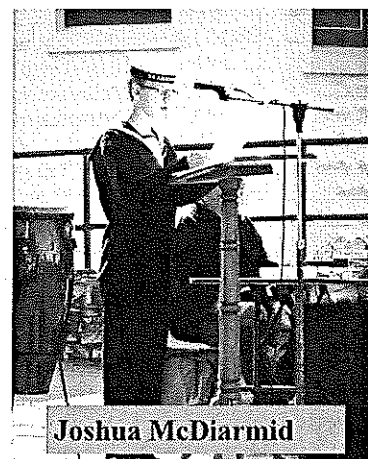

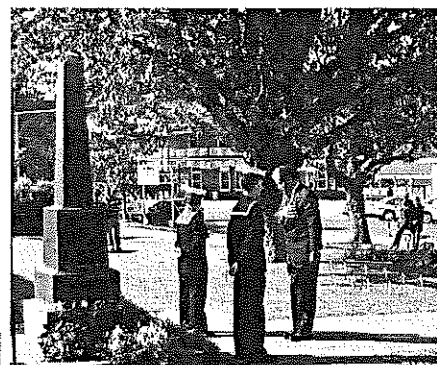

Firstly, the public of St Marys and surrounds for there ongoing support. The Vietnam Peacekeepers-Peacemakers Federation of Tasmania, The St Marys Memorial Committee, Sister Lorraine Groves, T.S. Argonaut Cadets, Rita and Ian Summers, Don Ives, Ted Koops, Grant Faulkner, the Break O'Day Woodcraft Guild, the Targett Family for letting us play the Last Post by the late Selby Targett, The St Marys District High School, Envoy Melanie Norton and the Jammers, Mathew Mitchell, Tracey Scar, Beck Barnes, Emma Squires and Deb Barnes for helping to clean up the Cenotaph before the special day, the Valley Voice, and last but not least, Shantelle Arratta, Corey Thow and Joshua McDiarmid.

"Flour Mills"

In the nineteenth century, water powered flour grinding mills were an integral part of the economy in Van Diemens Land. There is, however, some argument among historians as to where the first mill was built.

The Historical Society at Deviot, where the ruins of an old mill still survive on the Supply River, claim their mill, built in 1825 by Andrew Charlton, was the first in Van Diemens Land.

Hobart historians, on the other hand, claim that a mill built by Robert Nash and powered by water from the Hobart Rivulet was operating as early as 1818. Nash sold the mill to Arnold Frisk who built a second mill on the Rivulet named Waterloo Mill. This mill was described in the 1820s as a brick stuccoed building 80 by 35 feet in the basement and four storeys high. On the eastern end were six good apartments, all of which were occupied by the miller.

Nash is also credited with building the first water driven mill in the Australian Colonies when he built a mill on Norfolk Island in 1795. He came to Van Diemens Land after the relocation of the Norfolk Island convicts in 1814.

Farmers in the Fingal Valley were also prominent wheat growers in the nineteenth century and water powered flour mills were common in the Valley. A number of small mills existed like the one at "Rosegarland" near St Marys, which was powered by water from Gardiners Creek, but the two main mills were "Millbrook" in the foothills of the Mt Nicholas Range and Bean's Mill at Fingal. Bean's Mill, which was powered from the waters of Township Creek, ended up being the largest and longest running. It operated well into the twentieth century, but in its latter years was powered by steam.

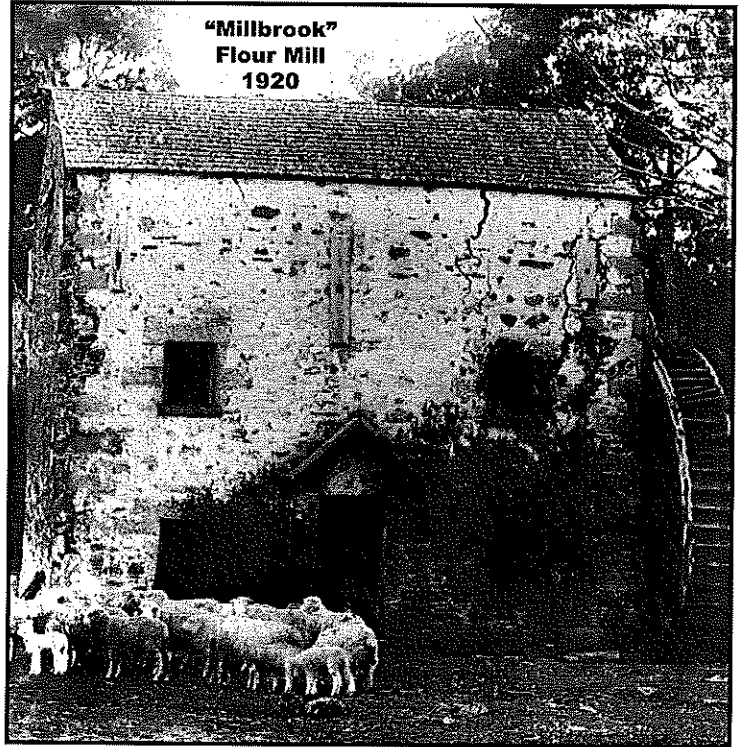

For those people in St Marys, who frequently travel to the Mt Nicholas Mill Stream for their drinking water, you can be assured that the little stream has had many uses over the years, with its name coming from what would appear to be the first stream to power a water driven flour mill in the district.

Around the 1840s "Millbrook" mill was built by Thomas Ransom, who was the owner of the land around the little stream at that time. From the onset, it would seem, Thomas must have thought the waterway had potential for a mill because he named the property "Millbrook" even before a mill was built.

Whilst the fields that grew the wheat are still here and the streams that drove the mills are still running the mills are all long gone, now only heaps of rubble. This is another example of an industry that played a significant role in the lives of many of our ancestors, but today has gone by the wayside.

With the world still demanding huge amounts of wheat products, one can only wonder why the Fingal Valley does not contribute to that demand.

Dear Judith

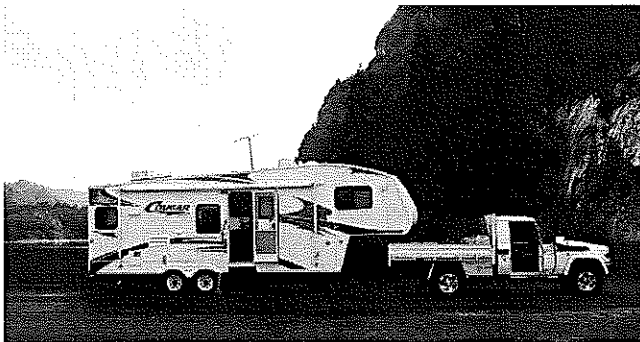

As travelers we would like to thank the lovely people of St Marys for their welcome and support. We have been travelling for the last 2 and a half years and can say with true experience that your town offers one of the very best free camps in the whole of Australia. A gold coin donation box in the supermarket or the information center might allow us to show our appreciation. We also loved the museum but heard from some other travelers that they were disappointed to miss it as it was only open certain days.

Many, many thanks for your insight and planning. Full time travelers may seek free or donation camps but spend more time and therefore money in your towns. Many travelers get together and swap local knowledge and recommend places to visit. This free tourist information is probably the most effective sales pitch you could ask for.

Once again thank you and we will certainly be back

Good friends are the threads in the tapestry of our lives.

Ronnie and Barry.

To the Valley Voice

Since the St Marys pass will be closed until approx the 21 of June, Doesn't it make sense that the DOG MICRO CHIPPING that is to be held at the beginning of June at Scamander, to be held at St Marys instead?

Not only will it cause more traffic over Elephant pass than needed, but also the Elephant pass is in a bad state, and by June it could be even worse.

So the least amount of traffic over Elephant pass the better for the road, and the better for the dogs and the drivers that will have to make a longer trip to Scamander.

It will be much easier and less vehicles and less stress on the road for the micro chipping mob to come to St Marys. I have sent a letter to the Mayor concerning this matter.
Kim Watkins.

St Marys Health Forum - Thursday 26th May 2011

Look out for further information in upcoming Valley Voices, but keep the afternoon of Thursday 26th May free for the health forum and afternoon tea to be hosted by the Healthy House.

We already have many health professionals ready to speak about their services and how to access them as a community member and a number of community groups who will be hosting tables at the event, to encourage participation in local events.

We are hoping this will be a well attended event. A planning meeting was held at the Healthy House in St Marys on Wednesday 4th May 2011. We are still looking for community members to sit on the steering committee and will advertise the next meeting date in the next Valley Voice.

Contact Healthy House or Janet Drummond 6372 2851 for further information.

ANZAC DAY 2011 in St Marys

Today is a national day of remembrance. We gather here to remember those who gave their lives for us.

One of those brave men is Private James Charles Martin, who was only 14 when he signed up to fight. Hardly a man yet brave enough to fight.

I will now read an article about Private Martin. About his early life, his involvement in WWI and the honours and awards he received.

James Charles Martin (3 January 1901 – 25 October 1915) was the youngest Australian known to have died in World War I. He was only 14 years and nine months old when he succumbed to typhoid during the Gallipoli campaign. He was one of 20 Australian soldiers under the age of 18 known to have died in World War I.

Early life

James Martin was born to Amelia and Charles Martin on 3 January 1901. His father was born Charles Marks, in Auckland, New Zealand however, after immigrating to Australia and settling in Tocumwal, New South Wales, he changed his name to Martin to avoid discrimination for being Jewish. Charles worked as a grocer, handyman and (horse-drawn) cab driver. His mother, Amelia, was born in Bendigo in 1876 to Thomas and Frances Park. Her parents had immigrated to Australia during the gold rush in the 1850s. The youngest of twelve children, she married Charles just before her 18th birthday.

Martin's family moved to many different suburbs in and around Melbourne before finally settling in Hawthorn in 1910. Born in Hawthorn, he was the third of six children, and the only son. He attended Manningtree Road State School from 1910 to 1915, during which time he also received basic military training as a junior cadet under the compulsory training scheme.

World War I

At the outbreak of World War I Martin enlisted in the Australian Imperial Force on 12 April 1915, against the wishes of his family. His parents finally agreed however when he made it clear that he would sign on under an assumed name and never write to them if they did not consent. He gave a false date of birth to the recruiting officer, claiming to be 18, when he was actually 14 years and three months.

Martin joined the 1st Reinforcements of the 21st Battalion as a private and trained in Broadmeadows and Seymour (later Puckapunyal) camps in Victoria before boarding HMAT Berrima in June 1915 to deploy to Egypt. In late August, he was sent to Gallipoli on the steamer HMT Southland, to take part in the fighting against the Turks. En route, his ship was torpedoed by a German submarine off the island of Lemnos and he was rescued after spending four hours in the water. After being picked up, Martin rejoined his battalion at Mudros Island where they were transferred to the transport ship Abassieh on 7 September.

The following morning, just before 2:00 am, Martin's platoon, 4 Platoon, landed at Watson's Pier in Anzac Cove. He then served in trenches around Courtney's Post, which was positioned on the ridge overlooking Monash Valley. During this time he wrote to his family telling them that "the Turks are still about 70 yards (64 m) away from us" and asked them not to worry about him as "I am doing splendid over here".

Throughout his time in Gallipoli, although his family were writing to him, Martin did not receive any letters from home due to a break down in the mail system.

Following a period of cold temperatures and heavy rain Martin contracted enteric fever (typhoid) in the trenches. After suffering mild symptoms for about a fortnight during which time he refused treatment, he was subsequently evacuated to the hospital ship Glenart Castle on 25 October 1915 after he developed diarrhoea. He died of heart failure that night, at the age of 14 and nine months, and was buried at sea the next day. At the time of his death only Martin's parents and his best friend, Cec Hogan—who was himself only 16—knew Martin's real age. Nevertheless, on 18 December 1915, Melbourne's Herald newspaper reported Martin's death in an article titled "Youngest Soldier Dies".

Honours and awards

Martin was awarded the 1914–15 Star, the British War Medal, and the Victory Medal. His name is recorded on the Australian Memorial at Lone Pine and on the Australian War Memorial roll of honour in Canberra.

Wikipedia, http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/James_Martin_\(Australian_soldier\))

Put yourself in his parent's shoes. Imagine what they would have felt, their only son dead at 14, still only a child. His life cut short while protecting us, the future generations.

Private James Charles Martin, the youngest ANZAC to sacrifice his life, and the many other brave men will always live on in histories page.

Lest we forget.

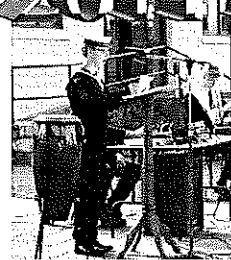

Joshua Mc Diarmid.

Gaps in the Ranks

Another ANZAC DAY is here,
Another milestone passed;
A few more gaps in the ranks
A few more than the last.
Time's thinning down the old boys
Time that keeps marching on;
It seems but yesterday, when, as lads,
They battled on the Somme.
But there's a gleam in those old eyes
And still their step is proud;
The old Dig's on parade again
While passing through the crowd.
His medals and his colours
Proudly showing on his chest
Show the places where he fought,
And where he did his best.
At the Cenotaph he passes
He's thinking of his mates
And of our gallant sailor boys,
And blokes who flew old crates.
Before his mind there passes
Flanders' mud and Egypt's sand
And the everlasting memory
Of the Rose of No-man's land.
Once again he's at Gallipoli,
And wading for the shore,
Where he won the title 'ANZAC'
That will live for ever more.

Mt Nicholas Field Day

The St Patricks Head & Esk Valley Historical Society Inc invite the general public to a field day at the old Mt Nicholas township on Sunday the 15th May 2011, meeting at the Purple Possum in Storey Street, St Marys at 10.00 am.

As well as looking into the history of what is now a ghost town, we plan to walk through the old town site and up into the hills to view the old coalmine relics, which were so much a part of the economy of the Fingal Valley from 1887 to 1958.

Around midday we plan to join the ghosts of the old mines in a BYO picnic lunch. It is also advised to bring along a satchel of salt, as we may also be joined by a leech or two.

The Say Cagerattler

The single biggest topic on many community members minds at present is the imminent closure for quite some time (a number of weeks) of the St Marys Pass.

No one denies that it is essential, given the most recent water damage but it makes it no more palatable does it?

For a lot of folk this 5.8 kilometres of bendy historic road is their daily link to or from the coast and is the only viable option. It disappoints me to think that other than us locals, not too many people with the power to make a real difference on this important matter seem to be genuinely considering the long term options for this region. Is it being put in the "too hard basket"?

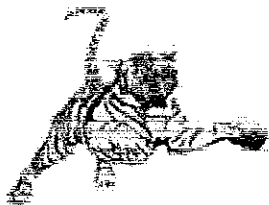

It has to be asked whether it's time to lobby State and Federal politicians for a solution that will give more certainty of travelling around this region. Our biggest problem is that we don't have a larger voting population. If this Pass existed closer to a major population base the polities would be bending over backwards to find money or make election promises to fix the issue quite quickly. Of that I am certain.

What makes things worse this time round is that Elephant Pass also has issues involving it's structural integrity, so let's just pray that during the coming weeks we don't cop another substantial rain event. That has to be a real and potential risk.

As many of us know the Forestry/Upper Scamander option is also fraught with safety concerns. It was never meant for periods of extended use by general traffic as indeed is the Upper Scamander road. Traffic meeting in certain places there are not ideal to put it mildly. For those of us who only need to make periodical trips it is not such a problem but for a substantial number of commuters, not least our schoolkids, who need to get to work or school it is a real problem and not popular at all.

Regardless of the outcome of this repair about to happen it is AN ABSOLUTE MUST that we demand our elected representatives that EVERY OPTION is explored thoroughly because we all know this won't be the last time St Marys Pass will be out of commission... I think we are worthy of serious and meaningful consideration in the long term. Aren't we?

What do you think ?

OUT OF THE WOODWORK

Anzac Day Tribute

The following is the exact wording from a letter written from a First World War digger from ANZAC cove to his sister. Full permission has been given from the family for this poignant letter to be published in Out Of The Woodwork. as homage to our many lost diggers.

"Dearest Sister Kathleen,

I write this letter with a heavy heart as I feel totally trapped in what can only be described as hell on earth. My days are filled with mud... the stench of death...and the cries of injured men who are even too weak to die.

I have written to momma separately with words of comfort and laughter knowing full well that my letter is filled with deceit. You and I sister, have shared too many years together for me to even try in a letter to protect you from the horrors I see and feel.

Just yesterday I came so close to meeting my maker... he took instead my close friend Jimmy. I feel sick at heart when I recall the promise he told me he made to his wife... that he would one day be home. Little does she know that he will never leave this place.

I am sorry for exposing you to my feelings of grief, but I have no one else with whom I can share my darkest moments. Please pray for me Kathleen and my many comrades that one day soon we will walk upon homeland soil.

Give my love and best wishes to little Tommy and Bernard...and god bless.

Your loving brother,
Christian.

Campaign to reduce problem gambling

The State Government has launched a $412, 000 community education campaign to help Tasmanians avoid gambling addiction and big losses on poker machines. The Minister for Human Services, Cassy O'Connor, launched the new problem gambling prevention campaign last week, aimed at revealing the pitfalls of on-line gambling and poker machines.

"The prevention campaign aims to stop gambling problems from developing in the first place," Ms O'Connor said.

"Poker machines alone took more than $215 million in losses out of the pockets of Tasmanians last year, and research shows that many of these people come from areas of socio-economic disadvantage.

"The bottom line with problem gambling is that it is often those who can least afford to pay, who pay the most.

"This education campaign debunks some of the myths about on-line gaming and poker machines and hopefully will save many gamblers from becoming addicted."

Ms O'Connor said two television commercials lead the campaign, covering how to avoid trouble with poker machines and online gambling, in particular offshore casino and poker websites.

"This campaign is based on recommendations from the Productivity Commission that the States look at improving consumer understanding of the risks.

"It is alarming that many people believe poker machines are eventually due to make a big payout – in fact, there's always a 10 per cent house edge working against the punter.

"That's 10 percent of every bet that gets kept by the machine. So the more you play, the more you lose."

The Productivity Commission also recommended that advice to players and community education campaigns should concentrate on the cost of play and the amount being lost.

The advertisements have commenced on Tasmanian television. The campaign also has press, radio, cinema, posters and brochures.

The Know Your Odds campaign also features a blog where people can interact with Jack, the character from the campaign and find out more about how gambling works. Visit www.knowyourodds.net.au to see the blog and view the commercials.

A Smurftastic Discovery!

Smurfs, long rumoured to be mythical beings, have now been found in the North Eastern town of St Marys.

A local resident discovered a small colony of Smurfs at the St Marys golf course.

It is possible that the Smurfs have relocated here in order to escape from their enemies, Gargamel and Azrael. How long they will remain is anyone's guess.

PRECIS OF SERVICE

We operate a community legal service and our lawyers have recognised that there is a general need for an increased level of "Legal Literacy" across the community. "Legal Literacy" is important for everyone and does not presume a lack of general literacy skills.

As a result we applied for and received funding from the Tasmanian Community fund for a pilot Legal Literacy Program to be run in 7 North Eastern towns, Beaconsfield, Campbell Town, Deloraine, Exeter, George Town, Scottsdale and St Helens.

The new program will use locally recruited volunteer advocates to assist other locals to resolve issues before they become overwhelming.

For example a person may have a form to complete and return to Centrelink, the tax office, local school, magistrates or family court or a contract or insurance renewal or policy and not be sure of exactly what is required.

Currently many people in this situation take the form to a friend, neighbour, the post office or bank for assistance or just sign the document without fully understanding what it is that they have signed. This can be problematic on many levels; privacy, conflict of interest, confidentiality, time taken from the business approached, possible disastrous consequences and so on.

Using the advocacy service the person will receive assistance and the confidence to deal with the form/issue in strict privacy with implicit confidentiality before the issue they face develops into a crisis.

Where an advocate identifies that there is an underlying legal issue that needs to be addressed by a lawyer then this program provides access to the free resources of the Launceston Community Legal Centre.

This all sounds as if it is common sense and that such a service should already be in place....but it isn't.

Volunteers will encourage and empower clients who use their services to build their confidence to see that they can "do it for themselves" wherever possible. Although we expect that legal literacy is something that even highly literate people may need assistance with we recognise that there will be people using the service who will need assistance with their general literacy.

These clients will be encouraged where appropriate to check out the assistance available through their local LINC. We commend the program to you and ask for your assistance to promote it locally in your area.

For more information please ring Beylara on 6334 1577 or 1800 066 019

St Marys Sports Centre Inc. News Kackhander

What a terrific night the recent Club Bowls Dinner was. Around 40 people enjoyed a fabulous meal that was a credit in every way to our catering crew. A very special mention to Alana Donald and Val Leedham. Thank you so much. To the others who helped out in any way equally thanks and to Roger behind the bar, the same. Thank you. Also to 'treasurer Trev' who collected and tallied the money so professionally. Thanks again Trev. It would be remiss if the members who came along weren't also thanked for their support. You can't have a successful night without them.

Whilst on thankyou's, some people we need to recognise are the two Jims. Club President Jim Turner gave a terrific and heartfelt speech on the season just completed. Jim does so much around the club and a lot of our sound position in bowls relates to him. Thanks Jim. Jim Rankin, passionate club member and Association President also spoke, and his forthright comments were great to hear. Another highlight was that our very respected Club Patron Kevin Faulkner spoke, and gave us a genuine and encouraging message to keep pushing the club forward and that we cannot afford to lose this fantastic facility so we all need to get behind it's endeavours. To both Kevin and Jill Faulkner thank you for attending and supporting the club. It's much appreciated.

Another great thing that night was that our incredible group of juniors were recognised by the club. Nathan Dawson received the Most Improved trophy but medallions were also presented to Hayden Dawson, Chris Arratta, Shantelle Arratta, Liam Davern, Jye Baldwin and Shae Ward.. Thank you and congratulations to you all. A special thanks to Glennys Turner for helping with championship trophy presentations and also thank you sincerely to Kristie and Troy Dawson who offered tokens of appreciation to Jim and Glennys on their efforts with all our junior contingent. A lovely touch and much appreciated.. A short meeting was held afterwards and the President elected unanimously for our host club year was Jim Rankin. Thanks Jim.. WE REALLY DO APPRECIATE YOUR KIND GESTURE. Thank you to Jim Turner who will stop on as Vice President and do most of the treasurers role. Brilliant Jim. Equally great that our hard working Secretary Nikki Viney will remain in this important job. The club is in great hands.

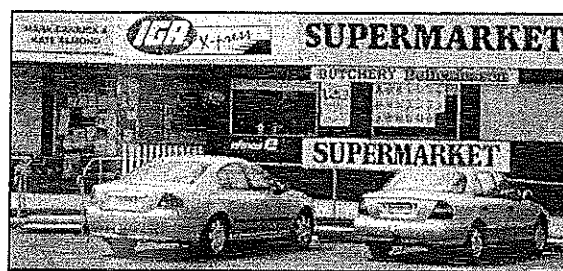

A special tribute (deservedly so) was paid to our green keeper Damon Viney for his amazing efforts all year. THANKS DAMON. Great news. Thanks to some great work and a fair bit of research Chris Davern's efforts have secured an incredible $12,000 grant to do the important work of upgrading the green ditches and banks to Australian Standard. Thank you also to Council for giving us the required consideration. It's going to be great.

Golf have got some great days coming up during May and June and it's anticipated that they will be well supported. Thanks to Roger, Alana, Blairy, Karen and 22 enthusiastic players who sponsored and supported the Reverse Course Challenge last week. Well done to all.

Finally some important things to watch for. Friday night Indoor Bowls commences in a few weeks (date to be advised). We hope to run a singles and pairs championship this year also, which should be great fun. Team events also. Cash prizes each night. You don't even have to be a member.

Another great night coming up is THE BIG TRIVIA NIGHT on June 4th. Teams of 6 are required and we hope to fill the clubhouse to the rafters. Cost is $10 per player and the cash prizes will be well worth winning. Bring plenty of friends and have a great night. More details next issue.

Until next time, good hitting and rolling.
