It's official: Bendigo Bank agency coming to St Helens

The successful response to the recent community survey coupled with the imminent closure of a major banking agency in St Helens has provided a valuable opportunity to the St Helens and St Marys Community Bank Steering Committee.

The first Bendigo Bank agency will be established at the end of November within the well-known Carlyle building, in downtown St Helens.

Successful and local business identities Tom and Jossie Bassett, have agreed to operate the new Bendigo Bank agency for the short term, in their store.

While the establishment of an initial presence in the Break O'Day municipality is an important achievement, it also marks the approach of the final stages required to open our first Community Bank.

The Bendigo Bank is working closely with the Steering Committee on developing the business plan and prospectus to assist with opening date scheduled for either June / July 2016.

If you have been thinking of opening a new account, transferring an old account or discussing any other personal, commercial or rural banking needs, the opening of the agency will be a fantastic opportunity to do this.

Any accounts and/or business established with this agency will be credited to the St Helens and St Marys Community Bank and assist with opening the branch.

This does not mean St Marys will miss out.

The initial St Marys presence will be through a weekly visit and an ATM, though Sammi Charles and her efficient team are just a short phone call away.

And we still need to get as many pledges as possible. Remember, these pledges are non-binding, though on realisation, will be converted to shares and make you a shareholder of your very own Community Bank.

Pledge forms will be available in the new agency.

You may have seen Roger Harlow and Chris Triebe outside Hilly's IGA in St Marys last weekend, or even stopped and chatted while sampling the tasty barbecued sausages.

Over the next month or so, they will be alternating between Hilly's St Helens and St Marys IGAs, so don't be shy, come and say hi.

Dear Wendy Brennan, and Valley Voice readers

Thank you for offering your support regarding the magazine Exploring St Marys with Kids by Kids for Kids.

At first I received quite a lot of local negative feedback, I feel this was quite cruel and unwarranted but as they say, water off a duck's back - moving on!

The children (with an average age of 9.2), worked really hard to gather information and include whatever tickled their fancy at the time, as kids do. They all worked together, on many of the articles, whether they went out to the site or not.

For me I had a ball, I learnt many things - one of the most important being that kids are kids, each with their different personalities, different perspectives on life and very different energy levels and sense of humour.

The combination of media tools and modern times allowed our experiences to be captured and presented in magazine form, adding many and experiencing a range of new skills.

Yes Wendy, I did fund it, and I will continue to do so.

Many of our first magazines have gone interstate and have been positively welcomed - warts and all.

Inside is a brief introduction and articles on coins, St Marys passes, St Patricks Head, Grey Mare's Tail, Mathinna Falls, Evercreech and South Sister.

Book 2 will be available at Madd Mudd within the next three weeks.

The cover photo for Book 2, another great photo, was taken by Harley Jones - well done Harley. Inside includes articles on Germantown, Cullenswood, Mangana, Moorina, Mt Paris Dam, Halls and St Columbia Falls. So if you're local, a traveller or just explorers like us grab a copy, you might be inspired!

Thank you to all the kids involved and parents who stepped forward to help.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor

A few years ago the Break O'Day Woodcraft Guild and Men's Shed Inc. members had a meeting with the then Mayor Sarah Schmerl and Chris Hughes to discuss a proposal to develop the old railway precinct. It was pointed out that the proposed building was within a metre of the disabled ramp, and blocked the vehicle entrance for people with a disability. Furthermore the proposed building would be built over:

- ◆ Existing sewer line
- ◆ Existing water pipe
- ◆ Existing outlet for the small creek that runs parallel to the road

It appears that the shift in location of this proposed building STILL encounters the same problems, plus encroaches on the parking area of the Guild's parking. The original proposal for this development was in the eastern section of the precinct where there are no such problems, and at the last on site community meeting this was the preferred area.

One can only hope that these issues will be addressed with common sense and stop the waste of ratepayers money on plans that are clearly unrealistic.

On behalf of the Break O'Day Woodcraft Guild and Men's Shed inc.

Reon Johns, President

Dear Editor

I would like to thank the 20 people who stopped to pay their respects at the 97th Remembrance Day Service. However, it was disappointing that there was no council representation via a wreath or any councilor in attendance, especially when one local councilor was observed in the local hairdressers blow drying her own hair during the service.

Message from the Healthy House Board of Management

At our recent Annual General Meeting we reported on a very successful year of activities in 2014-15 involving more than 1700 clinical appointments, we introduced seven new innovative and original programs and continued to provide a broad range of health promotion activities.

The board is grateful to our dedicated staff and volunteers who are committed to their work in providing services to the Break O'Day region.

Finding and retaining talented board members has been a challenge in the past so we were pleased to install our new board at the AGM.

We now have 11 local people with a broad range of skills and experience in local, state and federal government, private enterprise and self employment. They are drawn from the health, education, community and business arenas.

The Board are all looking forward to guiding Healthy House through the challenges of working in the ever changing health environment.

We are confronting head on the challenge of broadening our funding base, as without recurrent funding, continuing to do what we do relies on our ability to attract appropriate funding each year. This enables us to keep our services either free or low cost to the community. We recently achieved Deductible Gift Recipient status with the Australian Taxation Office, so donations to Healthy House are now tax deductible for donors.

New funding will sustain our plans to provide more services across the region and to continue to support other services as we have done in the past.

Nev Shaw, CHAIR

Rebecca White MP, Shadow Minister for Health and Human Services

The Labor party's firm and unwavering view is that Government has the responsibility to look after those who are most vulnerable, and this includes providing appropriate public housing.

The Liberal Government have other ideas, having announced they will give away up to 500 public housing properties with title. The Minister has not produced a shred of evidence to support this sudden decision to begin giving away public assets. No cost benefit analysis, no modelling, certainly no independent advice.

One of Labor's concerns is that there has been a lack of transparency around the Government's intention to transfer these 500 titles. The Minister has stated that it was a policy taken to the 2014 election, but the election policy only says the Liberal Party will "examine" the possible transfer; it does not place a timeframe on that and certainly does not make a firm or clear commitment.

From any reasonable person's reading of the Government's Affordable Housing Strategy and the Affordable Housing Action Plan, it would be safe to assume that the Government's intention was to enable community housing providers to have the opportunity to manage additional properties and use this to further invest in public housing stock.

However, we have now learnt that this is not the Government's intention at all. What they actually meant is they intend to give away up to 500 public housing properties. There is no process detailed for how the transfer of these 500 properties will happen, and what safeguards will be put in place to ensure these homes will be maintained as affordable housing. There is no detail about what, if any, modelling exists for how the Government has identified 150 new properties can be built if the transfer of 500 titles occurs. There have been no details provided from this Minister about what, if any, work the Government has done to address the legitimate concerns raised and acknowledged by the Minister herself about the transfer of title.

There are too many questions that remain unanswered about this rushed process, and the Government should put the transfer on hold until the Tasmanian public has more information.

We were just saying today what we would like to have when we get home. I want a nice soft bed with sheets, a hot bath, hot buttered toast, tea with not condensed milk and no men except Father of course, and he won't have a uniform on. Name the Break O'Day Multi-purpose Stadium Competition November 9, 2015.

The Break O'Day community will soon enjoy the use of a state-of-the-art Multi-Purpose Centre in Tully Street, St Helens.

Due for completion in January 2016, the centre was built with the vision of serving the entire community and will facilitate a wide range of community activities from sports and recreation to functions and the arts.

As this centre belongs to the community, the Break O'Day Council would like to invite the community to name the centre and has offered a prize valued at $200.

"We wanted the centre to accommodate a wide range of activities so that everyone in the community could enjoy this amazing facility's benefits," Mayor Mick Tucker said.

"And as it belongs to the community, we thought it made sense to let them be the ones that name it.

"We are very proud of what we have achieved with limited government funding and time, and we hope the people of Break O'Day will feel that same sense of pride when we finally fling the doors wide open."

The competition is open to anyone. To enter go to the Break O'Day website, click on the Name our Stadium news item and fill out the form.

Entries will close 12 midnight on Monday November 30.

Helping regional Tasmanians into work - November 10, 2015

A new work experience scheme will provide valuable assistance to Tasmanians looking to secure long-term employment. Federal Member for Lyons Eric Hutchinson said the Turnbull Liberal Government's National Work Experience Programme is designed to help job seekers gain experience in workplaces.

"National Work Experience is going to give job seekers an opportunity to be placed in a work-like role so they can showcase their skills to a potential employer," Mr Hutchinson said. "It's going to directly benefit young job seekers in particular, as surveys have shown that insufficient understanding of workplaces can prevent them from getting and keeping a job. The programme aims to build confidence and real-life experiences as job seekers will be given the opportunity to learn practical skills."

Mr Hutchinson said employers who go on to offer a young person paid employment after their placement may be eligible to receive a wage subsidy of up to $6,500 over 12 months.

Eligible job seekers will be able to volunteer to undertake work experience in businesses for up to 25 hours per week for a maximum of four weeks. Importantly, they will continue to receive their income support payment while in an unpaid placement together with a supplement to assist with the costs of participation.

Mental health BEGINS WITH *Me

The Healthy House and community partners recently presented two community days for Mental Health Month in October.

The St Marys event was held on Thursday October 29, and featured information stalls on mental health and wellbeing, an art display from St Marys District School students and outstanding performances by the school band and choir.

Visitors were also entertained by the Medea Park residents performance "DRUMBEAT" and the "Bros in Rhythm" Body Percussion Group from St Marys District School.

Building Blocks and the Launch into Learning Families also attended, and children explored games and activities about emotions and identity, and shared a healthy morning tea.

The event promoted tips to help maintain mental wellbeing.

- Sleeping well - most people need an average of eight hours sleep a night, and lack of sleep can cause health issues; try turning off the TV at least 30 minutes before you go to bed.
- Enjoying healthy food - good nutrition can be just as important for your mental health as it is for your physical health. Try to eat regular, well balanced meals and maintain adequate fluid intake to ensure you feel good.
- Planning and prioritizing - focusing on one thing at a time, keeping calm and planning ahead can improve your skills to cope with life's pressures. You may also find it helpful to write things down. Celebrate your progress when you finish a task by crossing it off your list. Remember, always set realistic, achievable goals.
- Tuning in - listening to music while you work or study can help you relax and even increase your creativity, productivity and focus. The right type of music can be calming, relaxing and can help reduce stress levels.
- Cutting down - the amount of alcohol, cigarettes and other drugs you consume can have a negative impact on your mental wellbeing. Try cutting back on your intake and set yourself realistic goals. If you want to quit, find support to help you do it effectively and for good.

How The Stables Handmade Market was born!

It's all about linking into an existing plan for the St Marys Recreation Ground, drawn up in 2006. This was completed after community consultation, and has gradually been brought to life with full support from Break O'Day Council.

The establishment of the free short stay camping ground (with showers and toilets) has been a major plus for the town of St Marys, bringing many RV and other travelers to visit and stay, and bringing much needed income for local businesses. This has also resulted in St Marys being officially recognised as an RV-friendly town.

More recently, the refurbishment of the sports club has injected new life into the recreational scene, which has the potential to raise the level of community support for the Sports Association and the St Marys Pacing Club.

This year, a discussion was begun by a number of local artists and artisans about setting up a Makers Co-op, with a view to finding premises from which to sell handmade items. This has now morphed into a steering committee of volunteers, under the umbrella of Greater Esk Tourism. The long term plan is for the steering committee to become an independent body (as occurred with the Avoca Museum and Information Centre).

The date of the inaugural Stables Handmade Market (January 2, 2016 - to be confirmed) was suggested to take advantage of the many visitors who come to St Marys for the New Year Races, and the racing committee has also been very supportive of our new venture.

Break O'Day Council has offered to provide funding and work to install a concrete floor for 12 stalls initially, and power, which we hope will be completed in time for our inaugural market.

The Say, by Cagerattler

First of all, sorry to Wendy our editor (yes, she did remind me as always) and to anyone else - I plain forgot to write for the last edition. I have no excuses and is only the second time in eight or so years I haven't done it. Thank goodness no-ones life depends on my rants!

I feel that this subject may well rattle the cage but I feel compelled to write this, given the complete disregard for humanity by the Muslim extremists in Paris over the past day or two.

The Muslim extremists are spurning and indoctrinating generation after generation of their young people to hate, and want to kill infidels in the name of Allah. Well extremists, Allah can go and get stuffed as far as any sane person thinks. I believe many of the extremist or fundamentalist ideals are predicated on lies and bending the Koran to the point of breaking, and because of this young children in Islamic countries grow up knowing nothing but hatred to us infidels, and anyone who doesn't subscribe to Mohammad the Prophet is essentially an infidel.

Their cultures (if these extremists or fundamentalists get their way) will treat their women as totally uneducated, no say in anything, breeding machines. Women have no rights whatsoever and cannot learn to read and write, as school is banned for them. Then you have Sharia Law that is simple unforgiving brutality at it's absolute worst.

So archaic it's impossible to believe it could be around in the 21st century under any guise.

Basically these terrorists use certain aspects of Islamic teachings to justify their actions, and, not unlike the Bible does in the way Christian clerics cherry pick some of the most antiquated laws from centuries ago to be seen to be bearing respect to God.

The Christian faith does not blatantly espouse Holy Wars though and we are taught to turn the other cheek if someone offends you, and teaches tolerance and forgiveness.

At the risk of going against that however, it's time that these Muslim nutcases don't get the other cheek treatment, and it's time instead that they get hunted down and made examples of in front of the whole world. Not only that, but if the Muslim clerics of great influence don't start imposing very strong views of tolerance and compassion with all other faiths soon, they will be seen as condoning these murderers. They have to start with the youngest of the young. It may take a couple of generations but the sooner they do the sooner it'll be better for all, themselves included. If this doesn't happen then the world will be a torturous place for many many years to come. These mongrels have to be stopped.

What do you think?

Healthy House Walking Group

Previous Walks

July 19 - Parkside Loop

13 energetic walkers fronted for this new Wednesday walk (new to most). Heading south from the road we moved across burnt out bushland, and many of us were surprised by the number of very large, mature trees which had been blown over.

We sighted numerous small orchids. It was easy walking on vehicle and bush tracks, coming back to our place via O'Connor's Beach.

A cuppa afterwards was most pleasant.

August 5 - Dora Point and Bay

It was a freezing morning, but nine hardy walkers fronted for another great walk around part of George's Bay. After a brief side sojourn to the bay, we set out on the Humbug Point Trail. Within a few minutes, the thermal jackets started coming off and stored in backpacks.

The difference between this and last year's trail was most evident; ferns were prevalent and spread a green blanket which stretched out across the hill. Many kookaburra's were sighted and heard throughout the bush, and the bay shimmered in the brilliant sunlight.

We arrived back at the cars about 11.20 and were back in St Helens at 11.30. Another energetic start to Wednesday morning.

August 19 - Scamander Beach

14 members of our walking group met at the Scamander River mouth carpark, where chilly a wind was blowing off Ben Lomond. We had a pleasant, sheltered walk in the sunshine past the new Surf Club building and along the gravel road behind the sand dunes in a southerly direction. We climbed the stile into Winifred Curtis Reserve, and crossed onto the beach to walk in the direction of Falmouth in brilliant sunshine.

It was a perfect day to walk on the wide beach, as the sand was firm and the water sparkled in the sun.

Some members did the round trip through the Reserve, while the bulk of us returned to the carpark by continuing our beach walk back to the river mouth.

We rounded off a very enjoyable morning by having coffee and muffins hosted by one of our Scamander members - delicious!

Winifred Curtis Reserve is looking glorious at this time of the year. If you enter by the entrance near Upper Scamander Road, it is the perfect place to enjoy a bush experience with its abundant wild flowers and birds, as well as water birds on the adjacent lagoon and the spectacular backdrop of the mountains around St Marys.

It is a great place to take visitors to the district as it's easy walking there - the tracks are well marked and have maps to show you just where you are at every track junction, and the exit is impossible to miss.

October 21 - Skeleton Bay to Dora Point

Gallant walkers go out in the bushland even when the weather is inclement and overcast, as can be seen in the photo (on the front page - Editor).

The Walking Group wishes to wholeheartedly thank St Helens Healthy House, Heidi Howe and Wendy Dawson for their support throughout 2015.

To all our reader's - enjoy the Festive Season and get walking!

Churches of the Valley Part 1

Since European settlement Christianity has played an important part in the life of those who lived in the Fingal Valley. As a result we are lucky enough to have a number of important examples of early Australian ecclesiastical architecture, together with several more contemporary examples. Some of the buildings remain in use as worship spaces and others have become private homes. Unfortunately, a number no longer exist.

At this time my particular interest is on the earliest buildings, in particular those which remain in use in the 21st century, and it seems that here in the Fingal Valley Tasmania we have splendid examples of work by important architects, from both a local and national perspective.

This is an ongoing process but every journey begins with a first step, and what better place to begin than at the chronological and geographic beginning.

St Thomas's Anglican Church, Avoca

The first building spotted when entering the valley from the west is St Thomas's Anglican Church at Avoca. Consecrated in 1886, the church has been in use since 1842. It is reputed to have been designed by James Blackburn, the architect also responsible for the beautiful St Georges Church in Battery Point.

St Peter's Anglican Church, Fingal

St Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Fingal

The next stop, Fingal, is home to St Peter's Anglican Church and St Joseph's Roman Catholic Church by Henry Hunter. The "new" Anglican Church, the one in use today, was built over two years between 1867 and 1869 from local stone and contains a number of memorials including some fine stained glass and beautiful timber carving.

St Joseph's is also a Hunter building, clearly made of local stone and has been in use since 1880 after a construction period which commenced in 1877.

Whilst beautiful in their own right, these two buildings are important examples of gothic revival architecture and demonstrate the influence of Augustus Pugin on the Archdiocese of Hobart, Bishop Willson, and subsequent church design.

A well signposted turnoff in the Main Street of Fingal leads one to the township of Mangana ... Home of "the Cathedral of the Valley", the Roman Catholic Church of The Sacred Heart ... designed by Alexander North from Launceston. Those of you familiar with Launceston may recognise his name as the architect of Holy Trinity Church and his is also the hand which produced the (now demolished) Commercial Travelers Club in Charles Street.

The information above is from The Australian Dictionary of Biographies (for more information on the architects named above search by surname) sourced online, my own copies of Brian Andrews' work on Pugin and Hunter in Creating a Gothic Paradise: Pugin at the Antipodes, and Geoffrey Stephens history of the sesquicentenary of the Anglican Diocese The Anglican Church in Tasmania.

Two great training events held in St Marys!

In the last few months, our very own St Marys Salvation Army, in conjunction with our local peer support group OurSAI, has been thrilled to host two fantastic, fully accredited opportunities for learning, both of which were free to the participants.

The first, was Hope for Life, a suicide prevention & bereavement course, and the second was the Mental Health First Aid Course (MHFA). Each course ran over two consecutive days and the MHFA included morning and afternoon teas AND lunch. Everyone ate very well indeed and was fuelled for learning!

Each course attracted between 15 and 20 people – a really good result for our population.

Janet Drummond and Mel Norton worked hard to make these two courses happen. Both are thrilled that more of our East Coast community is now empowered to put new theory into practice. This learning may help save lives, and provide skills to encourage others when they may be struggling.

Thanks to both of the wonderful trainers who came into our community, and all of those who committed their own time to learn about supporting others in our community.

Recently the children from JAM, their families and friends enjoyed a wonderful trip to Launceston to see Colin Buchanan in concert at the Door of Hope.

We all sang and cheered and danced and clapped and jumped and ... some of the JAM children were even invited onto the stage with Colin and his friend (puppet) "Nudge"!

What a great time we had in the auditorium, and after all that excitement, we all lined up to meet the man himself.

I know that all the children will never forget this experience and just to see their faces, as they watched this incredibly gifted man, made all the preparation worthwhile.

Have a Hand-Made Christmas at Suncoast Gallery

Yes, that time of year is upon us ... only how many days till Christmas? Suncoast Gallery members have been busy producing gifts, cards, and even gift wrap for you and yours to share. If you want big, expensive, mass-produced items, don't bother coming to us! We only stock locally-made, individual work by Tasmanian artists and makers at very reasonable prices, and as a cooperative developed to support local artists and makers, money spent here goes into the local economy.

Come and see us at our Christmas stall, which will be held in the Lifebuoy Cafe/Pieces/Suncoast Gallery courtyard on December 5, weather permitting.

There is something for all ages from infants to oldies, girls and boys, ladies and gentlemen. Some of the new items on show are Tracey Bird's darling little Yetis and Koalas, Belinda Hass' botanical art prints on aprons and cushions and Maureen Fisher's happy-making oven gloves and spicy mats.

For adults there is fine leatherwear in purses, belts, boxes, pen cases and more from Karl Balzer, and lovely jewellery from our great team of makers, using all kinds of materials from pottery to crystals to natural semi precious stones.

Most of our goods are lightweight and easy to pack and post or to slip into a suitcase, and none are overpriced.

The photos may give you a little glimpse of what we offer, but only a visit in person will show you just how much we have to offer, so do come in!

Suncoast Gallery is at 27B Quail St, St Helens, behind the Lifebuoy Cafe and Pieces boutique, and is open from 10 - 4 weekdays and 10 - 1 on Saturday.

BTW while you are there, grab the opportunity to take part in our annual raffle! For $2 you can win a charming mounted watercolour, a wholecloth lap quilt, Bluebell the beaded dolly or Lily the lollipop lady. Tickets are on sale at the Gallery and the draw is on November 21.

Fingal Community Garden

The garden consists of four raised garden beds constructed from treated pine and sleepers. One of the beds has a greenhouse plastic cover for protection from frosts for crops such as tomatoes etc.

So far we have planted tomatoes, lettuce, beetroot, silver beet and two varieties of beans.

The project was completed mainly by local volunteers and was funded by a government grant.

We would like to thank all those who assisted with this project, and hopefully the garden will produce many bountiful harvests over the coming years.

The Mount Elephant and Beyond Book Group Review

The Mount Elephant and Beyond Book Group is one of LINC Tasmania's statewide network of book groups. The group currently has ten members who come from St Marys, Bicheno, Scamander and Beaumaris. Each month we meet to talk about a title we have selected from a list provided by LINC. Books may be fiction or non-fiction, and range from thrillers to chick-lit, from travelogues to biographies and everything in between.

This month the group read an autobiographical work, A Mother's Disgrace by Robert Dessaix. Dessaix was born in Sydney but now lives in Tasmania. His most recent book, a memoir titled What Days Are For, has just been short-listed for the Margaret Scott Prize for the best book by a Tasmanian author.

A Mother's Disgrace is primarily about Dessaix's search for identity - through finding his birth mother, researching his family history and coming to terms with his sexuality. It begins with a confronting incident in Cairo, where Dessaix is mugged and the words that flash through his mind are 'What a waste' - he is going to die and doesn't even know who he is.

Dessaix was adopted as a small baby, his unmarried mother being forced to give him up for adoption. His birth in 1944 was, according to the social mores of the times, his mother's disgrace. Dessaix was brought up in a loving and supportive adoptive family, but there remained a 'shaft of silence' running through the centre of his life that represented the absence of his birth mother.

Later on, through a series of coincidences, he meets his birth mother Yvonne, and learns about the circumstances of his birth. Yvonne has no difficulty accepting the fact of Dessaix's homosexuality but she knows it will appear as yet 'another disgrace' in the eyes of her overbearing mother.

Dessaix seems to have had an extraordinary childhood - he was certainly no ordinary boy. He had a love of books and languages, and an imaginative intellect. He invented an imaginary city and a complex language for its inhabitants, complete with regional dialects. At the age of nine he decided to teach himself Russian.

Dessaix's experience as a student in the USSR in the 1960s forms one of the most interesting parts of the book. He makes the most of his opportunities to mix with the Moscow intelligentsia, but his dealings with the Soviet bureaucracy are sometimes bizarre. Despite being in the country specifically to study contemporary Russian literature, he is informed that this is not acceptable and that he is instead to study Dostoyevsky, Dostoyevsky having been recently rehabilitated by the Soviet authorities.

Dessaix is candid about the major events of his life. The explanation of his obsession with his wife Elizabeth and his devastation when she ends the relationship prompts some enlightening discussion about the nature of love, gender and sexuality.

The book reads like a series of essays rather than a cohesive whole, and ends with a brief essay on the nature of coincidence.

A Mother's Disgrace is sometimes complex but it is also interesting and thought-provoking.

Post and rail fencing ...

A fence using two to four (split) rails fitted into mortises in (split) posts with the ends of adjacent rails overlapping in the mortises. Although post-and-rail fences are the most iconic of Australian rural fences, they were expensive and required some skill to build successfully. It is likely that they were less common than the simpler brush fences.

*Right: The earliest image of a post and rail fence in the colony, 1789. Although rather stylized, it shows two distinct rails. The location of the upper rail suggests artistic licence. Detail from engraving "A Western View of Toongabbie" by William Lowry, 1789. From Collins, An Account of the English Colony, 413.*

Right: Erecting a two-rail post-and-rail fence. Note the pegs in the ground marking locations of the post holes, and the nails in the tops of the posts used for sighting and aligning the fence.

Support for families of those with a chronic mental ill health condition

Wednesday December 2, 2015 at the St Marys Community Health Centre from 12-2pm

This is an open invitation to an information session for anyone in the community living with or caring for someone with a chronic health condition. This will be an informal meeting- no referral is required, tea and coffee will be provided and there is no cost involved.

Keep A Lookout ... New Seedlings Arriving Weekly

An elderly lady travelling on a bus offers the driver some peanuts, which he happily accepts and munches away on. Every five minutes she gives him a few more of the peanuts ...

Driver: 'Why don't you eat them yourself?'

Driver: 'Then why do you buy them?'

If the whole world stopped spending money on the military for just 8 days, we could provide 12 years of free, quality education to every child on the planet.
