Break O'Day Community Stadium finds the perfect naming rights match

March 16, 2016

When looking for a naming rights sponsor for the Break O'Day Community Stadium, it was important to council that the sponsor represented the inclusive, community brief of the facility.

The St Helens / St Marys Bendigo Community Bank steering committee fits that bill implicitly, and the Break O'Day Council is happy to announce the stadium will be sponsored for a three year term by the organisation.

They have even adopted the colloquial acronym for the stadium, BOCS - short for Break O'Day Community Stadium, and the stadium will now be referred to as the Bendigo BOCS.

"We are ecstatic that we were able to partner with an organisation that held all the values we were looking for, primarily a community focus," Break O'Day Mayor Mick Tucker (pictured top left with Andrew MacGregor) said.

St Helens/St Marys steering committee chairman Andrew MacGregor said:

"The steering committee aren't there because they love banking, they are there because they care about our community and want to see money injected into our community.

"We are here for the long haul and most importantly for the benefit of the community."

Regional banking closures postponed

March 9, 2016

ANZ bank representatives have told members of the Australian Newsagents' Federation (ANF) who operate ANZ Local Link banking services in their businesses at Bicheno, Bridport and Cygnet that they have postponed this week's planned closure of Local Link sites in Tasmania. They will review impacts on their customers for a 6-8 week period before making any further decision on closures.

Ben Kearney, General Manager of ANF TAS, has thanked ANZ for taking this proactive step and listening to concerns.

"This is great news for our members and their communities. We appreciate ANZ listening to the concerns raised by customers, and those raised by our members. We look forward to working through the issues with ANZ, to see if we can achieve a better outcome for our regional areas," said Mr Kearney.

"Our main concern is still a loss of any banking services in regional communities currently serviced by ANZ Local Links. We hope ANZ will help us to better understand what the issues are for them."

"We obviously want to keep well trained Local Link agents sustainable and providing high quality banking services to local businesses, tourism operators and their communities. Ideally, we don't want to see anymore closures."

"The challenge is, customers have told us the alternative Bank@post service isn't a practical solution for them and growing small businesses. Limited cash and cheque deposits, withdrawals and change, as well as privacy concerns waiting in line at post, are not the banking solution they require."

"We really appreciate the 6 to 8 week postponement and the review ANZ have announced. We hope they will consult with us during this period about solutions that support ongoing strong regional banking services remaining available," said Mr Kearney.

The Australian Newsagents' Federation (ANF) is the peak body representing Australia's 3500 retail and distribution newsagents, who turnover in excess of $2b annually and employ 20,000 people.

Arts Festival to heat up the Coast in June

The Bay of Fires Winter Arts Festival is set to be bigger and better than ever with organisers presenting a bumper, four day itinerary including plenty of free events, as well as ticketed workshops and activities to engage young and old.

The schedule incorporates something for everyone and is a great way to warm the cockles in the heart of winter so make sure you, your family and friends are all ready to celebrate the talents of Tasmania and Australia's finest artists.

Just some of the activities locked in for the June long weekend include: the Bay of Fires Arts Markets on Sunday, Secret People Secret Places - a glorious meandering between open gardens and open studios, the Youth Art Prize exhibition and announcement, workshops of all varieties, quilting exhibition, St Marys Car Show, local markets and BOFA at the beach - a film festival held at White Sands, and of course the announcement of the $20,000 Bay of Fires Arts Prize.

Continuing to grow and grow, the Bay of Fires Arts Market will be held over two venues with organisers excited to announce the Artisano group will be in attendance and the Mel Hills will be attending as the feature exhibitor in 2016.

If you would like to be a part of this amazing, regional event, there are still plenty of opportunities for you to get involved including advertising in the full colour festival program which has a state wide distribution of 6000.

For more information on how you can support the festival, how to get involved, or how to purchase your tickets go to www.bayoffireswinterartsfestival.com or check out the latest news at the Bay of Fires Winter Arts Festival Facebook page.

Tell all your friends and see you there!

Letters to the Editor

St Patricks Head & Esk Valley Historical Society Inc.

Most of you would be aware that our Historical Society lost our very important member and president, Barry Aulich, some weeks ago.

Barry was a dedicated community person whose pride and passion for the Fingal Valley will be sorely missed.

We invite people with an interest in local history, in particular the Fingal Valley, to join us. The material gathered for the past decade is archived, under our guardianship.

It is exciting to discover - through the Group archives - many interesting things in the past, with stories and photographs to stir the imagination.

Presently our number includes two very dedicated members (former locals) who travel from Launceston to our meetings.

That says a lot about the Society.

You are invited to participate and be a part of the continued research and preservation of the Valley's history. Young, old or in-between, it's your history and has value for future Valleyites!

The Society meets on alternate months, but unfortunately the popular field walks, which were held on intermediate months, have had to be postponed.

As we wish to keep our history collection within the Fingal Valley and have had to vacate our current premises, we will be moving to the St Marys Railway Station. There we will be a part of the proposed Arts, Culture and Heritage Precinct, which will promote St Marys and local areas when completed. We welcome your interest and if you wish to join the Group, or have old photos, stories, newspaper clippings, or documents about the area and the people, and are willing to share them or allow us to copy, please contact:

Vice President Darlene 0438 534 763

Secretary Lois Hayes 0417 027 343

Treasurer Jim Haas 6372 2673

Our next meeting will be at the Cornwall Hall on Wednesday June 15, 2016 at 3pm.

WE INVITE NEW MEMBERS!

St Helens Navy Cadets take out prestigious National Award

March 22, 2016

St Helen's based Naval Cadets, TS Argonaut, have proven their supremacy over other units across Australia to be awarded

Most Efficient Training Ship 2015

A highlight for any cadet group, the Navy League of Australia trophy represents the demonstration of superior performance across a variety of criteria including; leadership, ceremonial, emergency response procedures, dress and bearing maritime activities.

"This is an outstanding achievement for TS Argonaut," Break O'Day Mayor, Mick Tucker said.

"It is wonderful to see this group of dedicated, determined and proud unit of Navy Cadets rewarded for their efforts and not just Council but the whole Break O'Day Community salutes them."

The three finalists, TS Pioneer from Mackay, TS Toowoomba from Toowoomba and TS Argonaut were inspected by the National Commander, ANC Captain Eliot Fisher ESM, OAM who determined TS Argonaut to be the Most Efficient Training Ship 2015.

"This award is the culmination of many years of work," Lieutenant Michelle Montgomery ANC Commanding Officer TS Argonaut said.

"With our present Staff and many of our current Cadets, we achieved best in State in 2013 and finished in the top three units nationally.

"Now, having achieved Most Efficient Unit in Australia, we have reached what we have strived for and we now aim to maintain this high standard."

Lieutenant Montgomery said that the Inspecting Officer assessing the unit congratulated the Ships Company and stated that the drill marching was some of the best he had seen in ten years.

TS Argonaut will be presented with the winners pennant, by the Chief of Navy, Vice Admiral Tim Barrett AO, CSC, RAN or his representative at a ceremony in St Helens, on a date yet to be advised.

The pennant will then be flown on the flagpole, at all parades, for one year from date of receipt of the Award.

"Australian Navy Cadets Award of Navy League of Australia"

This annual award is given by The National Commander of the Australian Navy Cadet (ANC) to the national Training Ship which demonstrates superior performance across a variety of criteria, including leadership, ceremonial, emergency response procedures, dress and bearing and maritime activities.

TS Argonaut - St Helens Tasmania has been awarded this honour for 2015.

CONGRATULATIONS TS ARGONAUT ....
Officers, Staff, Committee, Volunteers and Cadets you have done Break O'Day PROUD!!!!

It was a pleasure for the Guild to build and assemble the breeding boxes for our resident ornithologist Nan. Nan's specialty is budgies and we hope that she has a very prolific season ahead of her with an abundant array of colourful chicks.

The Open Day planning is going to schedule and we hope to see a sizeable crowd, so don't forget to mark your calendar for April 16.

Old favorites will be back, including the Colonial Strollers whose refined sensibilities add a certain cachet and accompaniment to our haute cuisine snags and Jun's Asian delights. Not to forget the 4x2's, (local musicians) the East Coast RC Flyers, Reptile Rescue, Star FM, jumping castle, the Old Machinery Club, face painting, go kart display, markets and craft.

The Open Day is held from 10am – 2pm at the Old Railway goods shed St Marys.

The Say, by Cagerattler

One of our genuine tourist attractions in St Marys is the trip up to South Sister Lookout. Of course many do the double and do Paddy's Head too. Since the big rain a few weeks ago, there is about 900m of the access road that has deep ruts caused by that downpour.

At the risk of upsetting the powers who are in charge of this bit of road (not sure if it'd be Forestry or Council), but could someone grade it at the first opportunity? I go up that way a lot and my old Mitsubishi wagon copes okay, only because I allow for crossing over the deep channels if no traffic is coming. However, a visitor might panic or get a wheel caught or damaged, either going up or coming down the hill near the base, as it joins the main gravel road through to the coast.

I expect the work has been scheduled for some stage in the near future, but with more visitors over Easter I hope it doesn't adversely affect any of them keen to do the South Sister Track. Maybe a warning sign to say damaged road surface or similar might be appropriate? It's certainly not impassable or anything, but it might be an issue for some.

It's great to hear that there are new people keen to move into town in the near future and there's word going around that upgrades are going to be happening with a couple of prominent venues. I received an email from a frequent visitor to St Marys about this and if correct, it bodes well for everyone. Maybe we ain't the hick backwater that some think we are.

What do YOU think?

Rod McGiveron, St Marys

Salutary March 11, 2016

Talking of hemp, don't miss Patrick O'Brien's great nautical saga: 20 + novels, Napoleonic Wars: won by hemp with a gunpowder contribution from our greatest trading partner and some exertion by a few tars.

Having established the little resort bayside on the east coast of the humanly uninhabited land in the, to them, antipodes, they cast about them looking for suitable material to make masts and rigging. Norfolk Island pine proved inadequate as did the potential rope-making plant whose name I forget at the moment.

Back to hemp.

A King's ship in those balmy far off days needed a sizable forest of oak, many miles of rope and a few acres of sail (hemp). She (not he) perforce must men to make her go = press gangs. Many men objected to being pressed as it was quite painful.

We may have little time to amend our sinful ways- we've been nagged by so many for so long. Never mind, grab it while we can eh?

Greatest admiration for our female campaigner. I revere you and yours. May the Lord make his face to shine upon you!

(The spelling and grammatical errors in this letter are deliberate.)

David Lawer, St Marys

Shoes and boots are made on lasts, which are manufactured of some soft wood, by means of an engine, or knife, such as that which we have described in the brush-maker's trade. The same man that makes the lasts makes also the wooden heels for women's shoes. The last for shoes is made of a single piece of wood to imitate the foot; but that for boots is slit into two parts, between which a wedge is driven when the boot-leg is desired to be stretched.

Shoe-makers use large quantities of Moroccan-leather, which is the skin of a goat, dressed in sumac, or gall, and coloured at pleasure.

Break O'Day Gathering 2016 – Embracing Change

The Break O'Day Tasmanian Women in Agriculture Discussion Group has been busily organising the 2016 Gathering, an opportunity for women to get together, learn about agriculture and also from each others' experiences.

You are warmly invited to attend during May on Friday 27, Saturday 28 and Sunday 29.

Friday evening will kick off with the official opening, drinks and casual dinner, and the producers' and makers' market, featuring locally produced wines, awarding winning Bay of Fires cheese and Bay of Fires Apiaries honey, artworks, photography, local history books and much more.

Saturday offers three farm tours, travelling by coach to Pyengana/Priory, The Gardens/Binalong Bay and the Fingal Valley. You have the chance to visit a robotic dairy, oyster farm, apiary, stud and commercial cattle, vineyard, salmon hatchery and agri-tourism venture. There will also be natural horsemanship demonstrations, working sheep dogs, historical talks and short bush walks.

On Saturday night Her Excellency Professor Kate Warner AM, Governor of Tasmania, will attend the Gala dinner and give an address. Patrice Newell (pictured at right) is our guest speaker. Patrice and her partner, broadcaster Phillip Adams, bought Elmswood Farm (located in the Upper Hunter region) in 1986.

Today Patrice manages 10,000 acres at Gundy, producing biodynamic beef, garlic, olive oil, honey and soap. In 2008 she set up an online business to facilitate sales.

In 2015 she completed her PhD at the University of Newcastle, and has shared her love and admiration for the often under-appreciated qualities of farmers, especially women, through her books The Olive Grove, The River and Ten Thousand Acres.

On Sunday morning the panel discussion, hosted by ABC rural reporter Rosemary Grant, will explore the theme "Embracing Change".

The panel includes five women of diverse careers in IT, banking, and farming who either grew up or now live on the East Coast, and includes authors Rachel Treasure and African born Katherine Scholles.

Social media war over the HMAS Tobruk II March 18, 2016

The David and Goliath battle between Fraser Coast and St Helens for an ex-naval Dive Wreck has escalated into a social media war. Each region has been opening fire on their respective Facebook pages, touting why their area would be more deserving of the artificial dive wreck and consequential economic benefits. As the battle for likes rages, behind the scenes both project groups are spurring their local, state and federal representatives into action in fear the vessel may be sent to Asia for scrap metal.

Federal Defence Minister Marise Payne stated on Tasmanian Talks last week that a decision would be made in the next fortnight, and explained the process to prepare the ship for scuttling was an expensive one. Already the Queensland Fraser Coast Council has committed $1m to the cost of scuttling the ship, and are urging their neighbouring Council Bundaberg to consider doing the same, Hervey Bay member for the Regional Dive Wreck Advisory Group said on Tasmanian radio earlier this week.

Meanwhile the Break O'Day Council in St Helens, Tasmania, is calling upon the State Government to commit to financial support for the project.

"Unfortunately our small, regional council cannot compete with a municipality that has more than 15 times our population and an annual budget of $150m," Break O'Day Mayor Mick Tucker said. "We are also a community heavily dependent on tourism, in fact we are the fifth most dependant region on tourism in the nation, but tourism is also our fastest growing sector in terms of employment and economic stimulus. In the last 12 months we have seen our visitor statistics rise by 12%, and we are confident a phenomenal attraction like the ex-HMAS Tobruk would make a huge difference to our region and go a long way to bolstering confidence in our beautiful municipality."

Something VERY strange is happening ...

She's cleared off the pine table in the kitchen; the one usually littered with the book she's currently reading, the unfiled mail and sundry bits and bobs, and now she's wiping it down with a dish cloth and some spray cleaner.

A very tall man has just come to the front door and he's calling me Beatrix, I've seen him before but he doesn't usually visit the old school masters' house ... I wonder what's in his brown bag?

They're talking about worms and needles, and now I know why she nursed me when she stood on the bathroom scales this morning ... it seems I weigh 5.5kg and when Jeff comes to visit I'm allowed on the (very clean and tidy) kitchen table.

An injection, some medicine, a tablet and some stuff on my back ... followed by two surprises - came out of that brown bag. Then I realised; Dr Jeff, the vet from St Helens, was doing a home visit to make sure my shots are up to date.

He plans to come back in April to visit any households where there are animals who need routine care, it's much better than being put in a box for a car trip and I got to look out the window from up on the table ... a perfect spot for watching the neighbour's cats.

Sadly she's cleaned the table again and moved the chair so I'm guessing sitting on it was a one off but I did enjoy my treats and the view.

As part of Harmony Day 2016 the Break O'Day Welcome and Support Group in conjunction with St Helens Neighbourhood House hosted Recipes for Harmony 2016. The event was made possible by grant funding from the Break O'Day Council, together with major sponsorship from the Multicultural Council of Tasmania, supported by the Tasmanian Government.

Community members were invited to bring plates of multicultural foods to share and 28 people attended the Bungalow at the Neighbourhood House in St Helens, bringing foods from a variety of backgrounds - Australian, Indian, South American, North American, German and many more.

Our oldest attendee was 98 years young and we were delighted when Eric Hutchinson MP arrived to join us at the dinner. During the evening, music was provided by Astrid and Todd Dudley. We finished with a number of short films about Australian Migrant and Refugee experiences.

The evening was a great success and the recipes which accompanied each of the dishes will now be collated into a recipe booklet from the evening, for sale and distribution as a joint fundraiser for the Break O'Day Welcome and Support Group and St Helens Neighbourhood House .

The banners made by children and adults at the recent Outdoor Multicultural Film Night in St Marys were used for the first time at an event to welcome the participants.

Convicts; The Salt Water River Coalmine Research Project by Wendy Fowler R.N. B.A.(Hons). A paper presented at the 14th annual conference of The Australian Mining History Association, held in Queenstown Tasmania from October 4 - 10 2008.

The story of the discovery of coal is a chance event in Lieutenant Governor George Arthur's determination to establish a bureaucracy, which encompassed every aspect of colonial life and also a story of isolation making early Tasmanians captive to market forces. In his quest for meticulous documentation Arthur appointed two convicts, Woodward and Hughes, to survey the land mass of the Tasman Peninsula.

Coal was apparently discovered by them on the western bank of Norfolk Bay (Plunkett Point) in February 1833 and some specimens carried to Port Arthur and presented to Commandant Charles O'Hara Booth. Commandant Booth sent a report of these findings to Hobart to Arthur's secretary in early May with an accompanying letter. Booth also records, in his journal, making a visit to the area to examine the coal seam and the obtaining of further specimens which were also sent to Hobart.

This discovery was greeted with much interest by Arthur because of fuel shortages in Hobart and its environs. It appears that the finding was formalised later in 1833, when Woodward returned to Plunkett Point charged with doing a specific search. Subsequent correspondence indicates that Arthur saw merit in using the coal mine as a place of work for the "most refractory convicts", as well as providing a fuel source which would reduce if not eliminate the colony's dependence on New South Wales for coal. Subsequent reports raised questions about the quality of the coal but there is no doubt that its discovery permitted an element of self sufficiency. Having said that, coal is certainly not the fuel of choice in Tasmania and that is very possibly a legacy of unreliable supply together with inconsistent quality.

The man tasked with managing the Tasman Peninsula operations for the convict department, Booth, spent much of his term as Commandant at Port Arthur travelling around the Peninsula, and his journal provides evidence of extraordinary trips cross country and by sea.

Under Booth's careful scrutiny a pair of shafts were sunk. Booth's journal records his role as an interested observer mindful of his official status rather than a technical expert, and there is certainly nothing in his record to indicate his knowledge of mining extended beyond that of a curious amateur scientist. It appears likely that one of the original shafts was an access shaft and the other for ventilation. Whilst this was standard mining practice and, when aided by the lighting of a fire at the base of the ventilation shaft, facilitated a down draft of fresh air into the underground working - such an intervention requires an understanding of mining not readily available in a non-mining community. There is also an inherent danger of either explosion due to "black damp", or of suffocation with an underground fire. There is no record of either explosions or underground fires during the establishment or early workings of the Plunkett Point mine. The first ship load of coal for Hobart Town left Plunkett Point on June 5, 1834.

During the Arthur period the coal mines were used as a punishment station within the Port Arthur operation. Those who re-offended at Port Arthur could be sentenced to a period of between three and twelve months hard labour. Men sentenced to such a period at the mines were given a daily quota to achieve as part of their punishment, and the rider that failure to meet this quota would result in solitary confinement in the underground cells at Plunkett Point. Following the introduction of the Probation system in 1839 the mine operation, although still administered from Port Arthur, was a probation station in its own right, rather than part of the classification and punishment system of Port Arthur.

As the demand for coal increased in Hobart the pressure to raise productivity at the mine correspondingly increased. There were questions raised about the amount and quality of available coal, the production capacity, the suitability and security of wharf facilities and the skill level of the work force. In response to these questions Dr John Lhotsky was appointed in January 1837 by Lt Gov John Franklin, at 10/- per day, to plan the development of the Plunkett Point Coal Mines. His preparations and support imply a thorough examination was expected and a significant report to be provided. His report includes maps and plans, as well as suggestions for future management and a commendation of the overseer's abilities, with a rider concerning his social class and literacy and numeracy levels. Within his report to Booth, Lhotsky also expresses his misgiving about the quality of the coal and the number of men employed in the area. He recommends that the shaft be deepened considerably, rather than new fields be sought elsewhere. He also makes a number of recommendations regarding the layout of underground workings in order to facilitate supervision of convicts.

St Marys Tennis Club court resurfacing

St Marys Tennis Club would like to thank all the people involved in making this project possible.

What started as a suggestion because of the condition of our courts (last upgraded in 2001) became a major journey. With a suggestion from Simone Alright from Tennis Tasmania to apply for funding through community grants, our journey began.

Firstly I would like to thank Scott Bentley - without his knowledge and persistence, providing the massive amount of paperwork required would not have been possible.

Once our money was secured from Community Grants, we then had to find a way to raise the other half of the funds required.

For that we thank Tennis Australia and the Break O'Day Council. Also a thank you to Venarchie Contracting and C & D Excavations for the preparation of the court surfacing.

To the many people who helped make this all possible: Scott and Caroline Bentley for everything, Wayne Polden for our new drainage system, Gecko Surfacing Solutions for their amazing job of the courts, Lyle and Graeme for the fencework, Scott, Lyle, Hayden and Steel N Diesel for refurbishing the umpire chairs.

I would also like to thank Karon our treasurer, our committee and members for their input and cooperation whilst this work was taking place.

Lastly we hope everyone enjoys all the benefits of our work so we can all continue to play this great game. Happy hitting!

Dana Smith St Marys, Club Secretary

Anyone who knows Nick will know how much he loves to get out on the water, so spending some time with Les Simms on the Lone Dove was a real treat.

When asked what it was that brought this wonderful vessel and its charming captain to St Helens, Les answered, "there were three things that attracted him: the climate, the clean waters of the bay and friendly environment."

Les first heard about the services the Break O'Day Business Enterprise Centre offers while talking to several attendees at the St Helens Chamber of Commerce's Annual General Meeting.

As a business man with many years experience you could be forgiven for thinking that Les wouldn't need help setting up a new business, but like any prudent business person entering into a new business environment, gaining local knowledge is an essential part of the decision making process. Les said, "Nick and his team were fantastic with helping him to gain local knowledge".

Les said, "Nick's enthusiasm for our business and his practical support with navigating the various permits required by local authorities, made choosing to bring one of our boats from Stanley to work on Georges Bay so much easier."

The traditional couta boat Les uses for his Heritage Couta Boat Cruises, was built in 1923 by the famous Ned Jack Shipbuilding Yard and is in the process of being officially heritage listed.

Les offers half hour, one hour or two hour cruises. For clients who like to wet a line Les has all the fishing gear on board. Clients can also enjoy an onboard picnic lunch and glass of wine.

Tasmania was attached to North America 1.4 billion years ago 2July 28, 2014

Two physical scientists from the University of Tasmania and Mineral Resources Tasmania, both in Australia, have analysed sedimentary rocks from the Rocky Cape Group in North West Tasmania and found that the rocks are very similar to those found in the North American states of Montana, Idaho and British Columbia.

Jacqueline Halpin and Peter McGoldrick dated tiny samples of minerals known as monazite and zircon, which are found in the sedimentary rocks from Rocky Cape, and discovered that they are between 1.45 and 1.33 billion years old—this also makes them the oldest known rocks ever found in Tasmania. According to the scientists, the minerals must have been deposited in an ancient ocean about 1.45 billion to 1.22 billion years ago. Their finding suggests that Tasmania and Western North America were geographical neighbours about 1.4 billion years ago in the supercontinent Nuna, also known as Columbia.

“As plate tectonics and the supercontinents cycle started to rift Nuna apart, a large sedimentary basin formed that included the Rocky Cape and the Belt-Purcell Supergroup rocks,” explained Dr Halpin in a press release.

Because Tasmania’s rocks are different from the ones in mainland Australia, scientists hadn’t been able to pinpoint the exact location of the state during this prehistoric period. Previous studies had suggested that Tasmania was part of central Australia and drifted apart when the supercontinent Nuna broke, but the new evidence contradicts this theory.

Halpin told the Guardian: “The rocks of Tasmania don’t look like the rest of Australia’s rocks if you look at those more than 700 million years old. The rocks up the east coast of Australia are much younger than in Tasmania. In terms of the geology, Tasmania is much more like North America.”

The mineral dates have also provided important information about the Horodyskia (string of beads) fossils found recently in the Rocky Cape. These fossils are visible to the naked eye, but are rarely found in rocks older than 635 million years, explained the researchers. This finding, however, suggests that the Horodyskia discovered in Tasmania could be twice this age.

“Unlike stromatolites, which are formed by communities of simple, single-celled organisms, Horodyskia may represent the oldest known ‘tissue-grade’ multi-cellular organism,” explained McGoldrick.

The results of the study were published in the journal Precambrian Research.

Protecting our children from disease 11 March 2016

Regional Tasmanian parents are being urged to ensure their children’s vaccinations are up to date. Federal Member for Lyons Eric Hutchinson said immunisation is the safest and most effective way of protecting against vaccine-preventable diseases.

“This is why the Turnbull Liberal Government is implementing No Jab, No Pay,” he said. “This important policy is about protecting our children and keeping them safe. Diseases can have such devastating consequences. Babies under six months are at the greatest risk of death from whooping cough, for example, so the more babies immunised, the more we can protect our most vulnerable, including those unable to be immunised for medical reasons. While Australia has childhood immunisation rates of 92%, coverage of up to 95% is needed to stop the spread of some diseases such as measles.”

By the end of next week parents whose children are not vaccinated and do not have a valid medical exemption or catch-up schedule will start incurring a debt for child care payments that they’ll have to repay,” he said. “A family’s choice not to immunise their children is not supported by public policy or medical research – if a dangerous disease is preventable, we must do everything possible to stop it.”

The Australian Government provides vaccinations for children under 10 for free under the National Immunisation Programme. Eligible families may be able to access free catch-up vaccinations for children aged 10 to 20.

The marijuana conspiracy: the reason hemp is illegal - part two

by Doug Yurchey, The Dot Connection July 17, 2010

Hemp cultivation and production do not harm the environment. The USDA Bulletin #404 concluded that hemp produces four times as much pulp with at least four to seven times less pollution.

From Popular Mechanics, February 1938:

"It has a short growing season ... It can be grown in any state ... The long roots penetrate and break the soil to leave it in perfect condition for the next year's crop ... The dense shock of leaves, 8 to 12 feet above the ground, chokes out weeds ... hemp, this new crop, can add immeasurably to American agriculture and industry"

In the 1930s, innovations in farm machinery would have caused an industrial revolution when applied to hemp: this single resource could have created millions of new jobs generating thousands of quality products: hemp, if not made illegal, would have brought America out of the Great Depression.

THE CONSPIRACY William Randolph Hearst (Citizen Kane) and the Hearst Paper Manufacturing Division of Kimberly Clark owned vast acreage of timberlands. The Hearst Company supplied most paper products. Patty Hearst's grandfather, a destroyer of nature for his own personal profit, stood to lose billions because of hemp.

In 1937, DuPont patented the processes to make plastics from oil and coal. DuPont's Annual Report urged stockholders to invest in its new petrochemical division. Synthetics such as plastics, cellophane, celluloid, methanol, nylon, rayon, Dacron, etc., could now be made from oil. Natural hemp industrialization would have ruined over 80% of DuPont's business.

Andrew Mellon became Hoover's Secretary of the Treasury and DuPont's primary investor. He appointed his future nephew-in-law, Harry J. Anslinger, to head the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. Secret meetings were held by these financial tycoons. Hemp was declared dangerous and a threat to their billion dollar enterprises. For their dynasties to remain intact, hemp had to go. These men took an obscure Mexican slang word: 'marijuana' and pushed it into the consciousness of America.

MEDIA MANIPULATION A media blitz of 'yellow journalism' raged in the late 1920s and 1930s. Hearst's newspapers ran stories emphasizing the horrors of marijuana. The menace of marijuana made headlines. Readers learned that it was responsible for everything from car accidents to loose morality.

Films like Reefer Madness (1936), Marijuana: Assassin of Youth (1935) and Marijuana: The Devil's Weed (1936) were propaganda designed by these industrialists to create an enemy. Their purpose was to gain public support so that anti-marijuana laws could be passed.

Examine the following quotes from The Burning Question, aka

Reefer Madness:

- a violent narcotic;
- acts of shocking violence;
- incurable insanity;
- soul-destroying effects;
- under the influence of the drug he killed his entire family with an axe;
- more vicious, more deadly even than these soul-destroying drugs (heroin, cocaine) is the menace of marijuana!

Reefer Madness did not end with the usual 'the end.' The film concluded with these words plastered on the screen: 'Tell your children.' In the 1930s, people were very naive, even to the point of ignorance. The masses were like sheep waiting to be led by the few in power. They did not challenge authority. If the news was in print or on the radio, they believed it had to be true. They told their children, and their children grew up to be the parents of the baby boomers.

On April 14, 1937, the prohibitive Marijuana Tax Law, or the bill that outlawed hemp, was directly brought to the House Ways and Means Committee. This committee is the only one that can introduce a bill to the House floor without it being debated by other committees. The Chairman of the U.S. Senate, Ways and Means Committee, at the time, Robert Doughton, was a DuPont supporter. He insured that the bill would pass Congress.

Dr. James Woodward, a physician and attorney, testified too late on behalf of the American Medical Association. He told the committee that the reason the AMA had not denounced the Marijuana Tax Law sooner was that the Association had just discovered that marijuana was hemp.

Few people, at the time, realized that the deadly menace they had been reading about on Hearst's front pages was in fact passive hemp.

The AMA understood cannabis to be a medicine found in numerous healing products sold over the last hundred years.

In September 1937, hemp became illegal. The most useful crop known became a drug, and our planet has been suffering ever since.

To be concluded next edition ...
