Volume 7 No. 20 P.O. Box 100 St. Marys. Friday January 31st, 1975 Price 7c
Registered at the G.P.O. Hobart for transmission through the post as a periodical What's new?

Presently undergoing many changes, the office of the Valley Voice is a hive of activity, most notably and sadly missed however is that ever happy former editor Graham Clarke now safely ensconced in Ulverstone. There is however, Kath Lohrey gathering the news from the district and working the duplicator as always, we have Mary Dawson and Fran Coghlan banging the typewriters, there's Peter Eubenach working on the headings and assisting with the duplicator and of course yours truly John Wassens now running this somewhat uneven ship.

In this issue we have several new contributions, the most notable being from the new Methodist Pastor Kevin Dobson, continuing in the wake of Pastor Clarke, with a very thought provoking column called "From the Parsonage", I'm sure our readers will gain some valuable insights from this column. We have some delightful and interesting gardening notes from Kath Lohrey, Health notes from Ian Coghlan which we hope will be a regular feature of the paper, all of us being interested in our health. We are hopeful that Mrs. Joan Smith will continue her very interesting "Just Yarning" column and some more of her wonderful experiences during her recent world tour. Of course there are our regular sporting features, fishing news, the "You and the Law" column by Inspector Alomes, poems, classifieds and news from around the district.

We would be most interested in any type of material that may be suited to this paper, poetry, short stories or anything you may wish others to read. We also ask sports secretaries to have results and coming events published regularly. Don't hesitate to reply or criticise to any article or idea published, letters are dealt with in utmost confidence by the Editor.

All in all 1975 looks like being a most interesting year for the Valley Voice, with regular staff changes the paper is always new and exciting. The Valley Voice is a non profit volunteer effort produced for the community, we feel there is a need to sponsor information and communication from the surrounding district, I'm sure this will help to bring us all a little closer together.

There are many people without whom it would be impossible to bring this paper out each fortnight, people who help with the stapling, typing, the newsboys, the local retail outlets, the many interested contributors and of course our many readers without whom it would all be wasted effort, we thank you all very much.

It pays to advertise.

This paper is a non-profit effort, therefore we need all the support we can to keep our heads above water (economically that is).

This paper regularly has a circulation of about 550, which means that it has a reader average of about 1,500, making it's advertising coverage unique in the local area.

It pays to advertise so advertise through your own local newspaper, the Valley Voice.

LETTERS TO
THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

I would like to support "Concerned" in his/her letter concerning litter in the St. Marys area - near the cemetery on both sides of the Gray road, people have been dumping garbage by the truckload in the bush. This disgusting habit can only be deplored by community-minded citizens. Do people not realise that there is a tip provided for refuse?

"Also Concerned"

Dear Sir,

As a keen badminton and basketball player I am amazed that the facilities for these sports are limited to the school which is not always convenient regarding supervision etc. on weekends. The "Community" Hall is rarely used and very expensive to hire - surely rate paying citizens are entitled to some benefits from this structure, particularly as these sports provide a social occasion and a new outlet for young and old people to get together.

"Mintonball Badbasket."

Dear Sir,

I was recently very saddened to hear of a small child killed on our roads, I'm sure no blame could be laid on the driver these unfortunate accidents do sometimes occur. I deeply feel however that it should make us all more aware and certainly more cautious both as drivers and parents. The lives of others are in our hands and one must at all costs preserve the precious gift of life given to us. I sincerely hope that out of such tragedies some good may come, and our roads may become safer for all.

"Worried Parent."

A POEM

"When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit -
Rest if you must, but don't you quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As everyone of us sometimes learns,
And many a fellow turns about
When he might have won had he stuck it out.
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow -
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man;
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup;
And he learned too late when the night came down,
How close he was to the golden crown.

Success is failure inside out -
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you never can tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit -
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit".

FROM THE PARSONAGE

A five year-old girl suffered from a muscular ailment which left her unable to stand or walk. Her play was confined to the floor and her view was limited. A service club brought her a wheel chair, and she said, "Now I'll go and look out of all the windows!"

Her resolve might well be that of everyone, especially those who know the attraction of the light of Christ. Remembering to look out the windows will make every day a time of thanksgiving. How much wiser was this little girl than those who lose power to be grateful because they have permitted greed or prejudice or complaining to cloud the windows through which they might look out?

To "give thanks in all circumstances" will keep alive the sense of wonder by which daily life can become more and more wonderful.

YOU & THE LAW

EDITORIAL

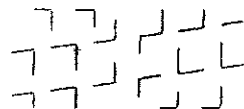

Over the last weekend a motor vehicle was stolen from Falmouth and dumped in Irish Town Road. The vehicle was almost wrecked before it was dumped, it had been involved in a collision with fence posts on Falmouth Road, then driven up Irish Town Road and abandoned. The vehicle was stolen during day light, the owner had left the keys in the vehicle outside his house and during the few minutes that the vehicle was parked there, the culprits seized the opportunity to drive it away.

We have been able to ascertain that the persons responsible came into our district on the Saturday driving a stolen car from Hobart which they dumped at Scamander.

They stayed the night in the Scamander area and in fact were given a lift from Scamander to the Falmouth turnoff. They went into Falmouth, stole a vehicle and after disposing of the car, searched around St. Marys for another means of travel.

Several local residents spoke to these two persons, in fact they were sighted under suspicious circumstances in a yard at a St. Marys home in the very early hours of Monday morning and then they were spoken to by the householder. At no stage over the weekend did anyone ever think of phoning the Police. It was not until our enquiries were commenced were we able to piece together this escapade of the thieves. It all goes to show that my article in the last issue dealing with public co-operation is of the utmost importance, for without a doubt, had we been informed, at the time, then we would have apprehended these two persons and so saved considerable time and expense.

H.F. Alomes,
Inspector.

Which Way From Here?

Over recent years there has been some criticism of the editorial policies of this newspaper, as the incoming editor I have decided not to change any of the policies regarding the editorial content. The criticism mostly concerned the question of religion or spirituality in the editorial, some readers felt that the paper was overly religious in content, this view may have gained some impetus by the fact that the previous editor was a minister of religion.

But an editorial, and an editor are only able to offer their own views, in every paper in the country the editors and management are putting forth their own particular views dictated by their political or personal affiliations, they are usually quick to put forward some solution to the various crisis of the moment, these usually consist of an economic solution to an economic problem or a political solution to some political issue. However, the problems are never solved in that way, you are only fighting fire with fire, you can't solve political problems unless the politicians are prepared to change their attitudes, and it doesn't appear as though they will.

As the Editor of this paper, I personally believe that the problems of the world will never be solved until we are able to see a change in the attitude of the people, this is not necessarily a religious point of view, but a point of view of life, and if that implies spirituality then be it so. In the world today we seem to be living according to some better forgotten attitudes that are anti-life. True spirituality should make people less ready to accept life as eating, sleeping and sensual pursuits. It seems imperative that we regain some kind of wholesomeness, some cleanliness and love if we are to survive the next fifty years, and if we are to provide a reasonable earth for our children to inherit.

We don't need religious fanaticism or dogmatism or sectarianism, what we need is religion of man, the true religion of God. A religion in which we can look upon all as one family.

I'm sure that the true essence of all religious teaching is that we are all children under the One supreme being. If only we could all embrace this truth then surely the world would change, and we would regain that which we have lost.

It seems as though a great many people would rather not read or see or talk about anything to do with spirituality, but in this present crisis, isn't that the most important topic of all?

FISHING NEWS

Good news for game fishermen - three albacore were caught off Freycinet Peninsula last Sunday, each weighing around 10 lbs. The catch is the first reported this season and is over six weeks later than last year. St. Helens Club will hold a Rally Day next Sunday and hopes are high for a successful trip to make up for the previous two wash-outs. Both charter boats are fully booked for the day. Last trip, a well known St. Helens identity (connected with the building industry) made history. Fishing from "Miss Behave", he hooked the keel of sister ship "Maybe". Unfortunately, "Maybe" got away. Last Sunday, Scamander Angling Club held a surf contest at Four Mile Creek Beach. Fish were scarce, being mainly small flathead and to make matters worse, there were several rain squalls which wet the appropriate part of the anglers' anatomy and once again, proved that old saying. First prize was won by the champ, Jack Midson, whose fish was only 1 oz., heavier than one caught by Lindsay Sutton. Third was Keith Nicklason, so the country boys from Pyengana scooped the pool. The next contest will be held on Sunday 2nd March (Labor Day weekend) at Wrinklers Beach from 11 am to 5 pm.

An article appeared in a leading Sydney newspaper the other day about an increasing number of doctors who are recommending to their patients to lower their consumption of meat, or, in many cases, stop altogether.

The reason for this is that these doctors have found arthritis and similar rheumatic diseases, headaches and nervousness have responded remarkably to a decrease of meat in the diet.

Eminent physicians have proved that a large number of ailments are caused by uric acid deposits in the muscle fibres of the meats consumed. When extra uric acid is eaten the body must eliminate it's own manufactured supply plus any extra eaten in the form of meat. For example, a pound of liver contains 19 grains of uric acid and a pound of beefsteak 14 grains, whereas the average daily amount the body produces for natural purposes is 6 grains. As a person's liver and kidneys are not able to deal with the extra intake, the uneliminated uric acid becomes the seedbed of gout, rheumatism, headaches, nervousness etc.

Another important objection to eating meat is that, of all foodstuffs, it most readily putrefies, releasing poisonous toxins which must be absorbed by the body - many of these toxins causing high blood pressure, hardening of arteries etc.

An important point to be noted is that cancer is practically unknown in vegetarian countries.

It is very difficult for people who have eaten meat all their lives to suddenly change but, if one meat meal per day were substituted for a fresh salad and cheese there would be nothing lost but a great deal gained - healthwise.

Try some Sinkers:

Sinker is a tasty little bread-cake which is great in a family because its easy to make and at the same time filling.

2 cups flour (plain & wholemeal)
1 cup sugar (brown)
dried fruit (amount you want)
spices (mixed, or nutmeg and cinnamon) milk.

Mix dry ingred., stir in milk till mixture is wet but not too liquid. Should come away from side of bowl when its mixed well.

Put into greased cake tin. Cook slowly in middle of oven, 300 to 350 deg. Must cook slowly. Will drop little in middle, shouldn't be soggy in middle.

It is a damp cake and can be eaten like bread. It is good with butter; and because it's so easy to make it can always be on hand for snacks. It keeps well.

GARDENING NOTES

Raising seeds is not difficult and the recipe for seed germination is really very simple. To germinate and grow, a seed needs oxygen from the air for respiration or breathing, adequate moisture and a suitable temperature. Clay soils haven't much air spaces between the soil particles and these soils become wet and soggy. When germination starts, respiration needs are increased. So sandy soils with large air spaces between soil particles are best, but sandy soils do not hold moisture well, so compost, peat moss, vermiculite (soil improver) or seed raising mixture must be added to improve the moisture holding capacity. As this must be maintained, it's the only way for the seedling to draw food from storage tissues in the seed and when tiny roots are formed nutrients are drawn from the soil.

The use of vermiculite has made seed raising easier. Vermiculite has quite large particles and will hold 14 times its own weight in water. Tiny root hairs can penetrate these particles which supply a built in moisture supply. There is less chance of drying out if watering is missed for a day or two. When transplanting the roots cling to the vermiculite particles and take moisture to their new home, they will not suffer such a shock as their roots will not be disturbed so much.

All plants do not germinate at the same temperature, so right time to plant is important too. Some plants like hot weather to germinate, others cool weather, this is why some plants are grown as spring plants and others as autumn grown. Anyway a planting guide is a good idea to go by.

LET'S LAUGH!

A Mexican was riding a little mule and his wife was walking behind him. "Friend, why is your wife not riding?" inquired a visitor. The Mexican replied, "She ain't got no mule!"

THE GENTLE CRAFTSA Relaxing Hangout

Hammocks are really simple to make.

All you need is:

1. A piece of really strong canvas.
2. Two pieces of dowel.
3. Something to make holes in the dowel.
4. Something to sew the edges of the canvas.
5. Two lengths of super-strong twine.

Right now -

Firstly cut two pieces of dowel, each one inch in diameter and 12 inches long.

Drill a quarter to half-inch hole at end. Then sew the ends of the canvas, leaving a casing 3 inches wide so that you can fit the dowel through.

The canvas should be about 2½ to 3 yards long and about a yard wide.

Now put a dowel through each end and take about 15 feet of really strong rope that will fit through the holes drilled at each end of the dowel. Cut the rope in half and thread the ends through the holes, tying one or two firm knots so they stay there.

And there you have it ... I hope.

(A Definite Journey)

... and I will leave. But the birds will stay, singing:

and my garden will stay, with its green tree, with its water well.

Many afternoons the skies will be blue and placid, and the bells in the belfrey will chime, as they are chiming this very afternoon.

The people who have loved me will pass away, and the town will burst anew every year.

But my spirit will always wander nostalgic in the same recondite corner of my flowery garden.
