"DON'T GOSSIP - BE CONSIDERATE"

The situation - How bad is it? The human tongue, while it is only a very small organ has terrible powers for good and evil. It can praise and thank; it can cheer and comfort; it can put people on their feet and keep them there. But it can also curse and hurt, kill and destroy. It can break hearts and ruin lives. It can rob a person's mind of peace and his life of joy.

By sowing seeds of distrust and fear it can break up a family and home, split an organisation into warring factions, ruin a business, throw a community into panic, cause the downfall of a nation and even destroy the whole world.

Rumours are certainly powerful weapons. They can kill and destroy as effectively as guns and bombs and everyone who has a tongue has at times misused it, and the number of those who have been victims of unruly tongues, is almost as large. This social evil seems almost to have become respectable. At least we can say that many who regard themselves as respectable freely engage in gossip.

Friends and neighbours, who rush to the aid of one another in an emergency, can at other times be most unfair and unloving in talking about another. Where three are together, and one leaves, the conversation seems to be drawn invariably to gossip concerning the person who has just left.

When we speak of the unruly tongue, we are dealing with a matter in which all of us are guilty. People of all ages have recognised the evil of slander, gossip and lies. An old Roman dramatist wrote rather crudely, but nevertheless correctly when he said, "Those men who carry about and those who listen to slanders should, if I could have my way, all be hanged; the tattlers by their tongues and the listeners by their ears."

While slander is today forbidden by law, the punishment of it is not so severe and we don't seem to recognise the full evil of it until we ourselves are its victim.

Why do we do it? I suppose it gives us a feeling of importance when we know and reveal something concerning others. It adds even more to our vanity when we can imagine we inflate ourselves by deflating others. We latch onto other's faults and exaggerate them so that we need not face our own. We would not think of showing our conceit by claiming to be much better than another, but we try and give the same impression by making the other person look so much worse than we are. The gossip and the slanderer demonstrates that he has found a cowardly way to display his own vanity. Unfortunately that way is acceptable in too many quarters today.

What can be done about it? We need always to be considerate of the good name and reputation of others, that we may defend them and speak well of them. We are all so far from being the kind of people that we could be and know darned well we ought to be, that it seems so strange that we should find faults in others and speak unkindly of them.

People tend to live 'up' or 'down' to their reputation and some in our district will continue to live down to the name that is given to them while ever there are people who regard them as nothing more than that name suggests.

Does our conversation lift others?; does it put them on their feet or does it drag them down? Does our presence and example keep others from gossiping? We must all learn to be more considerate about others!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

The last paragraph of your Editorial on Friday, 14th June, was of particular interest to me because I am a member of the Legislative Council Select Committee on Complaints of Administrative Actions.

Tasmania may not have the service of an Ombudsman but this Committee does, in fact, function as an Ombudsman.

I am enclosing two Reports of the Committee's work. The first is a progress report to 31st July 1973. It includes the historical background, the procedure, operation and powers of the Committee, together with the number and nature of complaints. Among other things it sets out the instrumentalities concerned, the nature of complaints and reports on cases completed.

The second Report, dated 2nd May 1974, reports on a complaint, No. 61.

A third Report should be presented to Parliament in August and will report on quite a number of completed complaints.

It should be understood that, like an Ombudsman, the Committee's investigation is limited to complaints of administrative actions by State Government, semi-government and Local Government authorities, as set out in its terms of reference. It is important to realise that Commonwealth Government instrumentalities are outside the scope of the terms of reference and that, like an Ombudsman, any complaint which is, should properly be, or has been the subject of a Court decision is also outside the Ombudsman field. Any matter which has been decided by Cabinet or is in the field of Government policy is also beyond enquiry.

Whether Tasmania, with a population of 400,000 people, can support a full-time Ombudsman with necessary staff and office facilities is still a debatable question.

The Committee should soon clear its present backlog of complaints, some of which date back ten or more years. It appears, on current trends, that a committee may well be able to cope with complaints at much less cost to the taxpayer than would an Ombudsman's office.

If any person or group of people would like additional information concerning this Committee, I would be pleased to assist.

Any complaints should be lodged with:

Ombudsman Committee,
Legislative Council,
Parliament House,

WHAT'S ON?

Since the last issue, Martin and Dawn Anstee and family have moved from St. Marys to Penguin where Martin has been appointed Branch Manager of the L.B.S. We will see more of them as Martin intends to continue with the St. Marys Football Club until the end of the season.

Mangana residents deeply grieved at the passing of its oldest resident Mrs. Alice Parker. Mrs. Parker was born at Mangana 91 years ago and spent most of her life on the township. Deepest sympathy to all the family.

A Warm welcome is extended to the new St. Marys L.B.S. Manager, Mr. Henry Trevena, his wife Pauline and children, Lee-anne, Darrin and Corey. Mr. Trevena was recently transferred from the Head Office in Launceston.

The St. Marys district is proud to hear that the High School Principal, Mr. D.A. Williams, has been appointed Principal of Brooks High School in Launceston. Denzil takes up duties in the New Year with Tasmania's largest school and will have 95 persons on his Staff.

St. Marys was thrown into utter chaos due to shoddy editing in our last issue. Locals were asking for meat at the Bakery and bread at the Butchery. Confused customers were asking Joan Davis for Toby and Ted, who are now really in the dough.

Rumour has it that Jim Owens Sen. sold enough meat in one week to buy a new car. As a result of all this, Allan Jackson sold all his 'sin' perfume. Our apologies to all concerned. The few remaining readers of this paper will be pleased to know that the Editor has received notice and has since gone to Siberia, we believe.

At every level in the Churches
Committee,birds sit on their perches,
Twittering of matters great and small -
How much is there that counts at all?

There is no subject any place
That cannot find a little space
In some or other Church committee
In country, town, suburb or city.

Cost of hymn-books: Roof of the Church:

Is smoking taboo? What shall we do?
Committee for me, committee for you.

Perhaps someone some day will ask
What is the most essential task
With which the Church should be engaged
In this C20 day and age.

The way to answer this is clear-
Consult with others far and near,
Committees new we must create,
So diaries out, let's set the date.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR Cont'

Dear Sir,

Who owns the tennis court behind the kindergarten? It seems to be a public court but no maintenance is carried out on it. This is a pity, for the recreational activities of the township are limited and a good court, made maintenance free, would be an asset.

Could it be determined whose responsibility it is? Once known, perhaps a clean up and repair with the assistance of interested people could be arranged in time for summer. Unfortunately such work in the past has been negated by petty vandalism with broken bottles and abuse but there may be people interested enough to make the repair worthwhile.

C.E.B.

SPARE A THOUGHT
by Conglomerate.

Its' a damp and misty valley,
When the weather closes in;
And the rain's a dismal spray
That can saturate the skin.

A pale light dimly glimmers
From a sun that seldom shines,
But women hang their washes
On the wet and dripping lines.

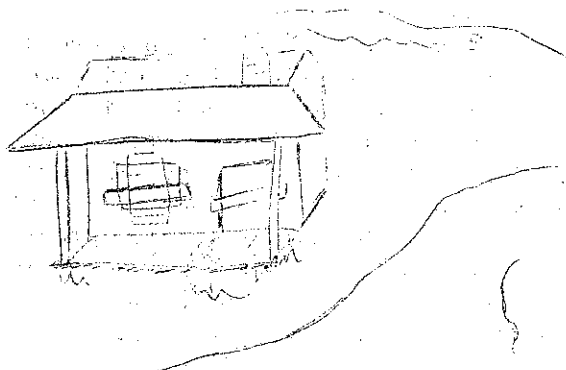

The road that's wet and muddy,
Orange clay against the hills,
Slowly twists into the valley
Past those houses vacant still.

Each window bleakly boarded,
Hides the ghosts of families gone -
For miners, unlike others,
Very rarely know a home.

But though there's houses empty
With a silence in the air,
It's the harshness of the landscape
And the hardships that they share.

In their isolated townships
Far from city, town and lights,
Underground their days are gloomy
Like an endless chain of nights.

Don't cast them off as nameless
Like a distant human race-
Consider every family
And the difficulties each face.

YOGA YOGA YOGA YOGA

To many people the word 'Yoga' conjures up visions of Eastern Mystics and Houdini - like positions, but it is a practice which is becoming increasingly more popular in Western countries and people are beginning to realise that it is not merely a series of physical contortions, but a very effective way of liberation for mind and body from the stress, worry and sickness of everyday life.

Yoga is the method by which the restless mind is calmed and the energies directed into constructive channels.

The basic system of Yoga is the performance of several 'ASANAS' (ie comfortable positions) incorporated with proper breathing. Progress is extremely fast in most cases and the coupling of breathing and mild exertion brings about calmness of mind, which, with practice, can be employed more and more throughout the day regardless of what you may be doing.

Yoga is not restricted to age, creed or anything; it is an art form leading to self realisation open to anyone prepared to give some time to a practice which our eastern neighbours have revered for thousands of years.

Anybody interested in taking a few short free lessons may contact the writer of this article by leaving their name and address with this paper.

FISHING NEWS.

Continuation of The Easterly weather has put a stop to surf fishing over the last two weeks and there are no signs of any early improvement in conditions. It is a good time to overhaul your gear. Reels and lines should be washed in fresh water and thoroughly dried. Reels should be greased after cleaning. It is also a time for making a supply of popping bugs - the commercial types are very dear if and when you can buy them and often they have inferior hooks. Next event on the fishing calendar is the St. Helens Surf Angling Club's annual meeting and dinner on Saturday 20th July. The meeting will start at 7.00 p.m. and be followed by the dinner - both are to be held at the Bay View Hotel. Scamander Angling Club will hold a Surf contest at Four Mile on Sunday 23th July, from 12 noon to 4.00 p.m. Subscriptions to this club are now due and were fixed by the annual meeting at $1.00 for adults and juniors pay no subscriptions. Entries to contest will be 60 cents to members, 80 cents to visitors and 20 cents for juniors. St. Helens Game Fishing Club will hold its annual meeting and dinner at the Bay View Hotel on Saturday 24th August, starting at 6.30 p.m. Dinner will cost $4.00 per head.

BADMINTON

Tomorrow an Association team will play in Launceston in the Country Associations Challenge Series. Over the past few years it has been difficult to raise a strong team and some bad losses have been recorded. Whilst not expecting to win the series it is hoped the team will acquit itself well.

The recent heavy rains caused another postponement of a match between Rossarden and St. Marys due to the poor road conditions to the mountain.

St. Helens won a well contested match against Fingal last Monday night to record their second win for the season.

Team positions are Rossarden, Fingal, St. Marys and St. Helens.

JUST YARNING

Falmouth in the year of approximately 1854, was a port of call for small boats, mostly ketches plying between Hobart and Launceston and vice versa, which may seem incredible to present day people, but it was so, and the set-up was as follows, for which I can vouch. My grand-mother, Mrs. Bailey-Holland, who was an immigrant from Enstone, a small town near Oxford in England, and who came out to Tasmania with her husband in 1830, kept the post office at Mariposa, (Falmouth), she was also in charge of a signal station and a produce store after the death of her husband in 1870. She was responsible for the despatch and reception of all produce to and from the little port.

Just beside the cottage in which my grannie lived was a very high flagpole on which were attached the necessary pulleys and ropes for hoisting the flags. These flags of various colours and designs were used as signals. In those days telephones were not in existence but matters of importance were transmitted by telegraph, and that method was used when loading or unloading was to take place at this port. The Shipping agents at Hobart and Launceston would get in touch with my grannie by telegraph and advise her that a boat with produce would be calling on a certain date giving particulars of cargo, requesting what cargo if any was to be lifted, where it had to go, and by whom it was forwarded. Then everything depended on the weather and the state of the sea when the boat concerned arrived off the 'port'. If the sea was too rough the boat could unload, but if calm enough it would anchor some 400 yards off-shore in a safe spot and unload cargo for Falmouth into a small boat which was then rowed to shore to a landing ramp situated near the N.E. end of Mariposa beach. I think there are still some of the old timbers from the ramp there now, certainly there are some iron bolts in the rocks which held the ramp in position.

On the further end of this ramp there used to be a crane consisting of a mast some 15 feet high, with an arm 8-9 feet long fitted with an iron pulley at the outer end, with another near the mast through which was threaded a half inch wire cable with a hook at the outer end, the other end being wound round the drum of a hand winch. This crane was used to haul up the contents of the loaded boats into the air,

FOOTBALL

The Valley Voice is pleased to bring the first "Football Notes" for the '74 season and regrets its inability to do so earlier. Although the unavailability of news for this popular column was unfair to our readers, they could not be more pleased than we are that the problem is now rectified.

We welcome a new Scribe, "Place Kicks" who will endeavour to see this season of footy through in this capacity. Let's hope that he scores plenty of goals with the readers and doesn't kick too many behinds!!

You will notice my non-de-plume is "Place Kicks".

Yes, I was around watching and playing a little in the days of the "Place Kicks". Here is a gentle hint to a younger man to take up writing football notes following this season. Players, football followers, general readers and the "Valley Voice" itself deserves this service.

As these are the first notes for the season perhaps a brief review would be in order and from next issue onwards I will do the job of reporting the games. At this point of time I feel we are in for a few weeks of most interesting games and results hard to predict. The final four will already be decided but football is a funny game and hard to forecast. A few weeks ago I was convinced that last year's premiers, Campbelltown would miss the flag and now I reckon Fingal shall be favourites. Big chances also are Avoca and St. Marys. When the grounds dry out again (if ever) the four will change again no doubt.

Now to more serious matters. Lionel Freeman's clearance wrangle. "It is my view that there should be no way where we have the position where a player should stand out of football for 12 mths. Players years of participating in this great game are few at the most (excluding Arthur Parsons). Enough said? A couple of years ago the brilliant Roger Yates was involved in a similar case - the result 12 months suspension.

Football injuries are becoming too prevalent these days and it is also a problem to the clubs and of course the players who are the sufferers.

St. Marys has lost the services of Greg Tapp, Cliff Williams, Stephen Salter. These players have been great stalwarts for the Tigers for many years and we wish them well. I understand that Greg and Cliff will be back in action before the finals and that is good news.

Did you know our reporter "One Eye" is now an umpire with the N.T.F.A. and what's more he is shaping well. We might get him over here for the St. Marys v Fingal clash of clashes on July 20. This should be a great game judging by their last encounter.

Would the Fingal District Football Association give the following some thought please?

How about a game between our Premiers and the Premiers of either the Deloraine Association, Esk Association or Tamar or North-East Union. This could be arranged I feel, with some effort of course. Such a clash would be a sell-out, no doubt. Inter-Association games seem to be on the way out as far as public following is concerned.

The standard of schoolboy football continues to impress, so get along to those early games, followers.

then was swung round inshore from where the cargo was loaded into a sledge or bullock dray, which ever was available, and so transported to the store some 200 yards away.

This store was built of stone with a shingle roof, the mortar for the walls being made in the usual way from loam and lime. There was a plentiful supply of shells nearby which were burned to make lime. From the lane that leads down to the beach one may still see some of the lower parts of the old store walls, these are to the left of the poor old 'Mariposa' house which is now only a ruin.

Apart from the port facilities at Mariposa, there were a few houses on what is known as Falmouth township, there were also three large farms, and a few small holdings. The larger farms were 'Enstone Park', (earlier known as Thompson's Villa), 'Glencoe' and 'Mariposa', producing dairy products, stock-raising, and some agriculture.

'Glencoe', originally named 'Huckamabad' was renamed by Archibald MacIntyre when he obtained possession of the property in the 1830's at the suggestion of his friend Mr. Robert Cameron.
