EDITORIAL

With the advent season about to commence, I wonder how your thoughts regarding this season are motivated. Here is something to stimulate your thinking, it is taken from a book "Creative Ways to Worship" and is written by Margaret Christensen.

CHRISTMAS IS .....

Christmas is believing in the Spirit of Santa Claus even when you know that no such person really exists.....

Christmas is licking stamps and sealing envelopes until one's tongue tastes like glue factory.....

Christmas is crawling out of the self-centeredness of an old miserly Scrooge and giving to make someone happy.....

Christmas is a small child with nose pressed flat against a store window with an undying hope in his heart.....

Christmas is kissing under the mistle toe someone you truly love - or think you love.....

Christmas is a small child singing, a lullaby to her new doll with the sentiment of a Raphael's Madonna.....

Christmas is shopping for gifts for loved ones and friends and spending more than one can really afford.....

Christmas is the wonder and awe in the eyes of a child as she tenderly places and replaces the figures of the nativity scene..

Christmas is the warm, cordial feeling one has for family and friends while baking Christmas goodies.....

Christmas is being awakened early Christmas morning by a small child who asks excitedly, "Has Santa been here yet?"

Christmas is a boy spending money for a special gift to his first girlfriend.....

Christmas is the magic and beauty of multicolored lights - crystal snowflakes-voices singing harmonious carols that break the silence of the night.....

Christmas is sharing our abundance with children who have no chance and the aged who have grown weary.....

Christmas is the sound of coins being dropped in the Salvation Army kettle....

Christmas is the simple faith and mysterious awe one feels as the family sits before the fire reading the Christmas story from the Bible.....

Christmas is the strange claim that God should enter into man's affairs thru a baby born of peasants in a humble stable in a far away land :Thus to give a new lease on life.....

Christmas is the Christ spirit in one person finding the kinship with the Christ spirit in another person.....

Christmas is saying with Tiny Tim :
"Merry Christmas and God Bless us every one".

"TOUCHE"

One of our couples who recently returned from a trip to Suva had a restless time the other night. Wife finished up pushing husband out of bed (or so the story goes) and he retired to a lounge chair. Some two and a half hours later, wife went looking for him and found him fast asleep sitting up.

There were no contests in the St. Helens Scamander region during the previous fortnight and the Swansea organisers are apparently not popular with the news media since nothing has been heard of their big bream and surf event. Perhaps some of our readers were there and can tell us all about it? Because of the lack of news, here is a true story which Tom and Keith Tucker might study carefully. There was a charter boat fishing off Brisbane with two anglers on board when they had a double hook-up (each angler hooked a fish). Both shouted contrary instructions to the skipper who put up with this for some time. Then he stopped the motor and started rummaging in his tool locker. One angler asked what he was doing? The skipper told them that he was looking for a saw so that he could cut the b...y boat in half and satisfy both b...y fisherman. Next Sunday, St. Helens Surf Angling Club will conduct a surf contest at Swimcart Beach from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. On Sunday 14th December next, the same Club will be at Big Lagoon Beach with similar times. Scamander Angling Club will hold a combined bream and surf contest on Sunday 28th December, so here is a chance to win two trophies on one day.

Marvin watched as they climbed in and then he heard a voice from the Control Centre say "You have ignition". There was a great thundering noise and the space ship shook. It frightened poor Marvin so much he thought his fur would shake off his back.

Nine seconds passed and the space ship left the ground. A minute later was quiet inside the craft. The roar had been left behind, for now the spaceship was travelling faster than sound itself.

Minutes went by and the rocket was going at a speed of 100 miles a minute! Marvin was still very frightened, but he loved adventure too.

Eleven minutes later, Marvin wondered what would happen next when - Flippity Pip!! he found himself floating! There was no gravity to hold things down, and he wasn't tied down.

One of the Astronauts saw Marvin floating about with his tail and legs spread out in all directions. He managed to catch Marvin as he floated by. The spaceman grinned at Marvin as he floated by. The spaceman grinned at Marvin through his "fish bowl" and held Marvin to the window.

The little mouse looked out and caught his breath at what he saw. He couldn't even raise a squeak. There, 100 miles below him, Marvin saw the world floating about like a battered old marble in a black inky sea.

Somewhere down in that dear world was his beloved mouse hole! Marvin wondered if his family had found his note. Perhaps they were gazing up at the sky just as he was looking down from space.

Marvin squirmed with excitement and looked at the smiling Astronaut. Marvin thought how kind his eyes were, and then and there the two became friends. The spaceman tied a cord around Marvin's waist and the other end he tied to his spacesuit, so Marvin wouldn't bang into anything and hurt himself.

Gradually the earth was left far behind and the moon came nearer. They were soon on the dark side of the moon. Closer and closer to the landing site they came. Marvin shut his eyes tight. He was so excited he couldn't look.

The bottom of the Lunar Module had thin probes 6' long, rather like spindly legs. They were 200 ft, 100ft, 50ft, down and then the probes touched the surface of the moon.

They had landed.

The engines were quiet. No one spoke. Then a loud yell and cheer went up, and the three Astronauts began hugging each other, they were so excited at the landing.

Soon they will be standing on the moon's surface, thought Marvin, then I will no what cheese the moon is made of.

The kind Astronaut picked up Marvin and tucked him inside his "fish bowl". From there Marvin would have a lovely view of the moon. The doors opened. Men and mouse stepped out.

Oh dear, where was the beautiful cheese he had heard so much about? Why there was nothing to see but rocks, craters, dust and more rocks. How disappointed Marvin was!

He watched as the Astronaut picked up rocks to take back to earth. He thought it a silly thing to do when earth had plenty of rocks anyway.

Before long the men climbed aboard the space craft to rest before the long journey back to earth. Marvin lay in the Astronauts belt pocket feeling so sad. How could he possibly go back to earth and tell the others the moon wasn't made of cheese after all.

Then he heard the men talking and realised the rocks were special, and might help humans to conquer some of the diseases in the world.

He realised too, that while the Astronauts were the very first men to set foot on the moon, he was the first mouse. Marvin was suddenly very proud. Somehow it didn't matter that the moon wasn't a big cheese. Marvin dozed off to sleep, happy knowing he had made history.

The space ship went back to earth and landed in the ocean. There was a helicopter close by to pick up the Astronauts and Marvin and take them home.

What a story Marvin had to tell his family and friends that night! He told them about the space ride and the helicopter trip. He didn't leave anything out, except one thing! When his little sister asked Marvin what sort of cheese the moon was made of, he would not tell her. After all, he didn't want to spoil the bedtime stories for tiny mice everywhere, did he?

GIRL GUIDES

The Girl Guide movement has resumed in St Marys. The district is indeed fortunate to have a new St. Marys High school teacher Miss Patricia Bower as its Guide Captain. This extremely capable young woman has impressed all who have met her, already she has trained and enrolled patrol leaders to assist with the teaching of other guides; Readers will be interested to note that Miss Bower was the only Queens guide to be chosen to represent Australia at a girl scout event in America in 1972. Miss Bower's knowledge and leadership will be invaluable to the many girls who will be under her care, and we all hope we will have the benefit of her experience and knowledge for many years. The Local Association met on the 13th November, and another meeting is to be held on the 3rd December at the Clinic to discuss further plans for future guide activities. On the 13th December the last handicraft session for the year will be held from 10-12 p.m. Saturday morning.

The band of interested people attending meetings is only small, but they certainly do not lack enthusiasm. With a Brownie enrolment of 17, and an expected Guide enrolment of 24 Guides (a total of 41) surely it is not too much to expect more than 7 or 8 mothers and friends to attend meetings. There is little activity for children in the town as it is, and it beholds us all to give a little of our time and energy to assist such a character building movement as the Guiding Movement.

Many people will be sorry to learn that we are to lose the services of our Brownie Leader Mrs Kath Lohrey; when she retires at the end of the year. Mrs Lohrey has been actively engaged in the Guide association for more than 34 years, in that time she has been a Guide Captain and held many other offices. However we will not be losing Mrs Lohrey altogether as she has been appointed District Commissioner for next year. The District has reason to be grateful for the valuable community service Mrs Lohrey has given unselfishly over the years, she has worked tirelessly; but as Mrs Lohrey now admits "she is weary and too old" to carry on, and feels it is time to give way to a younger leader who can keep up with the young and active Brownies. While many of us may not agree Kath is "too old", we do agree that it is time she had a rest from the responsibilities she has carried all these years, and on many occasions without assistance, we know Kath has enjoyed being Brownie leader but the fact remains that the work can be exacting and tiring, especially if you carry all the work load on your own shoulders. So come on some of you young Mums how about taking on the Brownie Leadership? It would be a great pity if the Brownie movement folded because of lack of leaders.

The girls in the Brownies enjoy their meetings and they will miss Mrs Lohrey very much when she leaves, however I feel sure that the young Brownies will give their support and co-operation to a young woman willing to carry on in Mrs Lohrey's place, they certainly do not want to cease Brownies because no-one cares enough to carry on the responsibilities of Brownie leader. Kath too, I feel sure, would retire "happy" if she knew that the hours of involvement and loving concern she has given, was not in vain, and that the work she has given so much effort to would be carried on by someone else.

urn or wooden bowl. If the pot pourri is to be seen arrange it with leaves, small rosebuds, marigolds, pressed violets, pansies, and everlasting flowers. The choice of flowers is largely up to you, and the same goes for spices. Here are some suggestions to give ideas: cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, mace, vanilla pod, sandalwood, cedar and saffron, eucalyptus leaves and citrus peel. Although you will probably want to experiment yourself to find pleasing combinations, you might like to begin with one of these simple recipes.

0.5 " ( 1 pt. ) rose geranium leaves
" " " lavender flowers.
1 cup of rosemary needles.
2 tbsps each ground cloves, cinnamon, allspice.
3 tbsps. each crushed orris root & powdered gum benzoin.
20 drops essential oil of rose.
5 " " " of sandalwood or citrus. For the last 2 ingredients, the Indian oils now selling as perfumes would be suitable.

HERBAL POT- POURRI.

Flowers : choose from, borage, camomile, elder, lavender, lime, cowslip, clover, marigolds, nasturtiums, rose petals, violets.
