Registered at the P.O. Hobart for transmission by post as a periodical.

Pollution is unwise use of resources, so conservation is wise use of resources. What we have to think out and decide is; what sort of pollution we want, as we are going to get some sort, there are too many people not to leave a mess, so a discussion is necessary about our resources. What can be done about our wildlife for instance? The best and surest way to kill off a species is to destroy its habitat, quite a lot of animals and plants become extinct if this is done. The surest way to conserve species is to make them earn money. Australian fauna is not so spectacular or so easy to see as some in other parts of the world; but its every bit as varied, and on a world scale, far more unusual. With proper promotion and imaginative national parks, our wild life could become a great asset to the country.

So using resources wisely means in general that a resource should be exploited in the manner that does the least amount of damage to the long term survival and renewal of that resource. The best idea of course is multiple use. A road can be a long strip of bitumen with long grass for 20 yards on each side and a fence, this is quite a good road, but that's all its good for.; or you could have a road in the middle of a strip 200 yards wide with the natural vegetation left intact on each side, you then have not only a road, but a nature reserve, a place for recreation and also a far more shady and pleasant road to drive on. This is also a sound idea as trees bind the soil, the end result is less wind and water erosion, better soil conservation and preservation of wild life, also the creeks and rivers are not so silted up. What we have to consider is-how to reduce pollution to the minimum is it going to do any good say to ban non-returnable containers? Well this will prevent the roadsides from having tins and bottles thrown there, BUT this will mean that there will be water pollution to wash the containers, more air pollution from vehicles which collect the empty containers to return to the factories.

To control pollution is going to be expensive. If we are going to demand cars that make less carbon monoxide, or rivers that are free of noxious effluents, or soaps that are bio-degradable, or containers which are reuseable, its going to cost money to do this, yet it should not cost us much as we have been led to believe. In fact it costs more, a lot more to have pollution, if this money could be used for prevention instead of repairing the damage it would not cost so much, in Britain for instance air pollution costs $250 million a year.

The following is an example of a grade 4 work on pollution, this copy was written by Claire Richardson.

Mostly over Tasmania and Australia there is pollution. Over in Tokyo they have special machines to breath from. The factories that put their leftovers in the water are paint, paper, and Zinc works, pollution can be very dangerous in the air. It can join together and make, big clouds of it which we cannot breath. The air is not clean it has little bits of dirt in it. Most factories should have machines that let the pollution go that instead of into the water or air. Over in Melbourne they had a strike with rubbish men and all the rubbish was piled everywhere. In the Derwent River there is a sewerage problem so the Government is spending over $1,000,000 to stop the pollution. In the Derwent also is the oil that comes from the tanker Lake Illawarra that sank when it hit the Tasman Bridge. People are very careless and leave their bottles, cans and icecream papers around to help this service stations have rubbish bins for all bottles to recycle them.

Dear Sir,

Your editorial of April 25th Vol,8 No.1 deserves every commendation for its deep insight and sympathetic generosity anent the recent fire at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

It is great news that arrangements to replace the Church are so far advanced. There is great love of God behind all that "To those who love God all things work unto good." "Yes" 'All things.'

God is called 'a consuming fire'. No one indeed should be able to interpret that metaphor more completely than the people of St. Mary's

May a totally new and beautiful Church now express the consuming love for God of the people of St. Mary's.

Unlimited good wishes to you all.

FROM THE PARSONAGE

What Does Your Home Say?

Visitors to historic houses have been heard to say, "If these walls could talk, what a story they could tell!". The telling of stories is not limited to old houses. A house may be simple rather than fancy, but it takes on 'character' through those who live in it.

Members of a family may leave home, but they take something of home, good or bad, with them. The home is more than a sum of all its parts. While familiarity may have dulled the awareness of members of the family so that they no longer notice certain details, yet a stranger may sense the prevailing spirit and the standard of values which control the home. Rudyard Kipling wrote that the house never lies.

Each of us should ask: Is my home the place where the spirit as well as the body may find rest and nourishment? Is it an example of Christian stewardship of possessions and time? Is the conversation an encouragement to good thoughts and works?

WHAT DOES YOUR HOME REALLY SAY?

SPOT-ON®

Bayer thinks of tomorrow-today

Lice control is more than just relaxing in a comfortable chair and squeezing a trigger. It's a form of investment. A shot of Tiguvon for a grown beast still costs as little as 20 cents. A weight gain of 1 kilo (2.2lbs) will repay that investment - even at today's prices. And research has proved that lice control can provide that kind of weight gain in about 4 days. After that you're making a profit of around 40 cents per head per week.

YOU & THE LAW FISHING NOTES

Last week-end was a black weekend in the North of the State when four persons died in motor vehicle accidents, the cause of which is still unknown.

I wonder, just what effect this news has on the average motorist. To some I know, it would stay in their minds every time they get behind the wheel, but to others, it means very little, for there are some drivers who just refuse to accept, that they are anything other than right, at all times.

One has only to drive from St. Mary's to Conara or St. Helens or down the east coast of a night, to find out just how inconsiderate some drivers are. It's a funny thing, but every so often we can come accross a particular driver who believes that the roads were built especially for him and that the car that he's steering, and I use the word "steer" as applied to "drive", is the only car that has any right to be on the road.

This type of person, cuts corners, ignores road signs, markings and speed limits, refuses to dip his lights and wants the sole use of the road. He's a hazard, a danger to others and it is this type of driver that we are looking out for, and we need the help of other motorists to bring this type of person into line.

Only the other day a certain St. Mary's resident passed the remark to me, that he was amazed as to the number of night drivers who just refuse or neglect to dip their headlights when meeting an oncoming vehicle.

The dipping of headlights, is just one little thing that can cause an accident. The result of which could cause the life of some innocent person. So please be a cautious and considerate driver.

Take pride in the fact that you own a car and hold a licence.

H.F.ALOMES.

Inspector.

St. Helens Game Fishing Club 1974/75 season ended on Sunday 11th May when members could only land barracouta in over six hours of trolling. A week before, Louis Benes of Scottsdale caught an albacore out near the Continental Shelf and this looks to be the last tuna this year. These fish were late reaching our waters (March 1975 compared with December 1973) and they left early. No bluefin were caught by club members. Our friends fishing from Eaglehawk Neck were even worse off - even stripeys were scarce down there. Scamander Angling club members braved gale force winds last Sunday at Wrinklers beach and many casts went "halfway to New Zealand". This did not prove to be of much advantage as fish were scarce, being mainly small flathead. Winner was Athol Newman with a 1lb. 4oz. flathead, second was Tom Oldham and third Eric Linton. Mrs. Newman made it a family affair by winning the Ladies Trophy and Stephen Lapham received the junior prize. The last event for the 1974/75 season will be held at Four Mile on Sunday 15th June from 11 am to 4 pm. This is the last chance to win one of the "heaviest for the season" trophies and as it is the Queen's Birthday weekend, a large entry is expected.

The Annual Meeting and Dinner will be held at the Scamander Hotel-Motel on Saturday 28th June next. Members will receive formal notice of this shortly. To end on a brighter note, a blackback weighing 4 lb 9 oz was caught near Four Mile recently so there is hope for the next contest.

TOUCHE

We know that our fogs tend to be rather thick at St. Mary's, but the one we had the other week must have been out of the ordinary. A well known gentleman from around Grey Road, the owner of a Holden Utility, could not find his drive-way and turned into his neighbours entrance. To add insult to injury he also hit the gatepost. Perhaps the annual Bowls Club dinner had something to do with it.

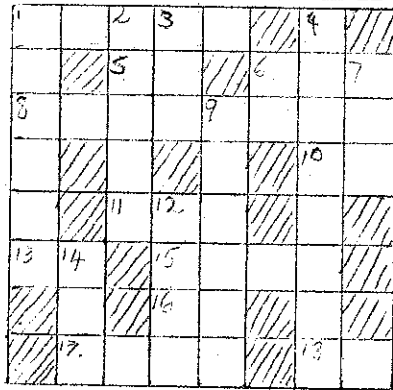

Barnes Shop is now open for business unfortunately the key went walk about.

FOOTY FACTS

By STAB KICK

With a third of the home and away matches completed, last season's Premier Team Campbell Town, sits confidently on top of the ladder.

Although trying to predict finalists at this stage of the season is asking for trouble, it appears as if Fingal is the only real threat to the Robins.

Swansea, under the inspiring leadership of high flyer Mike Braslin, has won it's last three matches. Braslin's receiving solid support from Ruckman McGuinness, forward Gary Radford and centreman Phil Kean. These players seem capable of keeping the Bulldogs in the four.

St. Marys, apart from being plagued by injuries, suspensions and players being unavailable due to work commitments, just don't seem to be showing any desire to get in front and win the ball. The Tigers are not playing four quarters and are falling to pieces in front of goal. Greg "Blackman" Tapp, Stephen "Dasher" Cook and Les Newman are battling hard, but they desperately need more sustained support from the other players, if the Tigers are to move off the bottom rung of the ladder.

Avoca in third position - have some very talented players in form - namely Nigel Stagg in the centre, 16 years old Dale Kitchen roving, "Crackers" Richardson on the ball and Howard Clayton and captain Leon Tomlins on the backline. St. Helens with only two wins so far, will have to improve drastically if they are to be a contender for the four.

Robert Lowe has the robust Robins fit and determined to do well and have their sights set on their third successive flag.

Brian "Lumbering" Leedham, Kelvin and Wayne Viney and Shane Lockett are just a few of 18 players giving their all for 100 minutes.

Fingal's Freeman brothers, Terry and Shane along with Peter "Red" Hall and Scotty Marshall are the nucleus of the Blue's Brigade which has suffered only two losses - both to the top side.

The draw for Saturday 24th, with home teams named first (Selections by "Stab Kick" is underlined.)

"JUST YARNIN"

Thought you might like to hear something about the life of that well known Mangana identity "Major" Eric Eberhardt.

He must have been playing hard to catch for a long time now as he's still a handsome bachelor with the slim straight figure of a lad, and yet he says he is 74 come October.... hard to believe!

Phillip Eberhardt, Eric's grandfather came here from Germany and settled in Campbell Town; he had 9 children, Charlie being the eldest, and also the father of Eric. Work was harder to come by in those days than now, but also very ill-paid when found, and this is why Charlie had to move his family about so often; first he worked on farms round the Campbell Town district drawing £1 per week and double rations for his family of 3. Then after a while they moved to a house in Avoca and Charlie worked at the Rex Hill mine. On Sunday afternoons the family often took a walk along the Royal George road with their young son Eric, so one afternoon when the boy could not find his Mother he walked along that road himself looking for her, but he got lost, and as it became dark he crawled into a hollow tree near the road. Only being 4 years old the little chap cried with fear, and this was fortunate for Jo Priest and Edgar Freeman who happened to be going out to set their rabbit traps heard Eric's wails and took him back to his anxious parents where he was restored with hot milk. The next move was to the mine at Waratah for 2 or 3 years, and then back to Avoca and the Rex Hill mine again. In 1910 bad times came and the Eberhardts moved to the bush 4 miles South of Avoca while poor Charlie looked for another job. Finally he decided to fossick for tin and wolfram near Gipp's Creek, and the family, which of course had increased by this time shifted there. At this stage Eric went to stay with his grandparents at Campbell Town for 6 months to get the only schooling he was able to have, this as much as anything shows how different things were then.

The family then moved to a small farm near the old Republic Mine, the other side of Rossarden. This must have been a relief for Mrs. Eberhardt as they had a cow, ran a few sheep, and she could grow vegetables; she also used to help the larder by shooting birds and rabbits with her husbands 410 shotgun when necessary.

This story of "Just Yarnin" will be continued in the next edition of the Valley Voice.
